THE CARIBBEAN TOURISM ASSOCIATION

The Caribbean Tourism Association (CTA) came into being in 1951. It was an off-spring of the Caribbean Commission, established by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill toward the end of the Second World War. The primary purpose of that Commission was to plan for the economic well-being of the Caribbean region in post-war years.

Planning tourism on a regional basis was a far-sighted concept in 1951, and the recognition by Caribbean Governments, more than 30 years ago, that tourism could play an important role in their overall developmental plans accepted from the outset another basic factor. This was no job for Governments alone. This was one of those instances in which neither the Governments nor the private sector could succeed without the whole-hearted support and cooperation of the other. CTA was, therefore, envisaged from the beginning as a forum in which the public and the private sector would work and plan together. The Allied members of CTA have played a vital role in CTA from the beginning and continue to do so today. Among them are such diverse interests as hotels and guesthouses, airlines, cruise lines, tour operators, travel agents, shops, yacht charters, news media representatives, taxi and ground operators, restaurants and nightclubs and suppliers of many types of goods and services. CTA counts among its members professionals in all fields related to tourism; people who are sensitive to the needs of the Caribbean people and who willingly give of their expertise and experience to help overcome specific problems.

The Caribbean Tourism Association provides both a forum and a catalyst for all of these purposes. The Association was legally registered in Curacao in 1951 and maintains its office in New York since that city is not only the hub of North American tourism but also the geographic center of most of the Association's activities. In recent years, it has extended its activities to the European market.

The present staff of the Association comprises an Executive Director, a General Manager, a Marketing and Public Relations Manager, and six other staff members.

The present membership comprises 26 Caribbean Government members and over 300 Allied members in the various categories previously listed. Any company, corporation, association or other type of group, and any individual having an interest in Caribbean tourism is welcome to join.

The Association is governed by a Board of Directors which is elected at the Annual General Meeting. The Board is composed of one Director from each member Government and Directors representing the airline members, the cruise line members, hoteliers (through the Caribbean Hotel Association) and other Allied members.

CTA works in the closest cooperation with the Caribbean Tourism Research and Development Centre and the Caribbean Hotel Association. This objective is achieved in several ways. There is an exchange of membership on each other's Board of Directors to provide a continuous liaison. The quarterly Board meetings of each organization are held at the same time and place in order to maximize the interchange of ideas and information. The Annual General Meetings of CTA, CHA and CTRC are held concurrently, whenever possible, and this occasion has been developed into an Annual Caribbean Tourism Conference lasting several days and bringing together tourism leaders from both the public and private sectors from the Caribbean, North America and other parts of the world.

CTA also works through regional Chapters, primarily comprising travel agents, supported by representatives of National Tourism Offices in the region, the airlines, tour operators, hotel representatives and travel press. They provide a regional forum where people interested in promoting travel to the Caribbean can meet from time to time for the purposes of education, information and communication. Chapters are functioning well in New York, Miami, Chicago, Los Angeles, Toronto, Detroit, Seattle, San Francisco and Houston. CTA also published a bi-monthly newsletter especially for travel agents.

The Aims and Objectives of the Association naturally follow the reason for its being:

1. To provide a forum for the exchange of information and ideas, for the consideration of common problems and the formulation of plans to promote the interests of members.
2. To facilitate communication between the people engaged in tourism in the member countries and those whose work is in the various tourism markets.
3. To provide information to the trade and consumer news media and to others who might make use of it by means of film, transparencies, photographs, news releases, statistics and other materials.

4. To supplement the work of the North American offices of member Government Tourist Boards in responding to inquiries for brochures, rates and other information and to do as complete a job as possible in this regard on behalf of member governments, particularly government members which do not maintain offices in North America.
5. To provide information regarding tourism developments in the various markets to the members in the Caribbean and when appropriate, to the general public in the member countries.
6. To provide a source through which governments and other members may seek technical and specialist advice.
7. To represent Caribbean tourism at Travel Shows both for the trade and the consumer, and especially to represent those member countries, which, for whatever reason, are not present to represent themselves.
8. To create and foster travel industry forums for the purpose of information, education and communication in various sub-regions by means of Chapters.
9. To coordinate - as far as individual members wish it - the expenditure of Caribbean tourism resources, both human and financial, to the best advantage of the participants.
10. To represent Caribbean tourism interests vis-a-vis international agencies, regulatory bodies and other regional and international organizations.
11. To bring the attractions of the Caribbean to the attention of potential travelers by films, through the news media or such other opportunities as they present themselves from time to time.
