Thoughts from a garden of reflection

By ALEX HOU

The site lies within Peking University, in a corner of China’s cultural landscape, with her personal sanctuary of a Qing Dynasty (1644-1911) Manchu prince. This led to seminal work on New China. Ms Schwarcz is Mansfield Freeman Professor of the Arthur M. Sackler Museum of Art and Archaeology at Peking University is one of the most popular tourist destinations in Beijing. The Arthur M. Sackler Museum of Art and Archaeology at Peking University is one of the most popular tourist destinations in Beijing. It is a major attraction for both domestic and international visitors. The museum houses a large collection of Chinese and Asian art, as well as temporary exhibitions and educational programs. The museum is situated in the historic district of Beijing, just a short walk from the Forbidden City and other major landmarks. It is open daily from 9am to 5pm and admission is free, although donations are appreciated. The museum offers a variety of guided tours and educational programs, making it an excellent destination for visitors of all ages. Overall, the Arthur M. Sackler Museum of Art and Archaeology at Peking University is a must-visit for anyone interested in Chinese and Asian art and culture.