In congratulatory message, he pledges China's support for SE Asian nation's development

By LIN JIANG

Xi Jinping, general secretary of the Communist Party of China Central Committee, on Tuesday congratulated Sihanouk, Nheb Thon, president of the Cambodian People's Party on leading the CPP to win Cambodia's seventh general elections.

Xi said in a congratulatory message that his government under the leadership of the Cambodian government headed by Hun Sen, with the regional and global status of China-South East Asia outcomes positively rising.

He reiterated that China will, as always, support Cambodia in pursuing a development path that suits its domestic conditions.

Under the strong leadership of Hun Sen, the CPP will make greater contributions to realizing Cambodia’s national prosperity and people’s happiness and to regional peace, stability and development.

Xi said that his government and the CPP have established friendly and cooperative relations with one another.

Premier Li Keqiang also sent a congratulatory message to Hun Sen on Tuesday.

A draft amendment to the Criminal Law was also reviewed at the session.

A amendment focus on better implementing the Communist Party of China and State laws and policies regarding the fight against corruption and the protection of persons involved in accordance with the law.

It refines stipulations concerning the investigation and retrial of people who commit crimes by persons in public positions.

On Tuesday afternoon, Zhao Jinping, chairman of the Centre of Directors of the NPC Standing Committee, presided over the closing meeting of the session.

The closing meeting, attended by 36 members of the NPC Standing Committee, approved the appointed appointments and removals.

Show of anger

The rolling crisis of COVID-19 pandemic is breaking up demonstrations with water cannons in Tel Aviv, Israel, on Monday. Photos against Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu’s handling of the controversial judicial reforms bill was passed by Parliament.

Xi hails Cambodian party’s poll win

By MAO ZUOYING

Xi Jinping, general secretary of the Communist Party of China Central Committee, on Tuesday congratulated Sihanouk Tho Hong Bun, president of the Cambodian People’s Party on leading the CPP to win Cambodia’s seventh general elections.

Xi said in a congratulatory message that his government under the leadership of the Cambodian government headed by Hun Sen, with the regional and global status of China-South East Asia outcome positively rising.

He reiterated that China will, as always, support Cambodia in pursuing a development path that suits its domestic conditions.

Under the strong leadership of Hun Sen, the CPP will make greater contributions to realizing Cambodia’s national prosperity and people’s happiness and to regional peace, stability and development.

Xi said that his government and the CPP have established friendly and cooperative relations with one another.

Premier Li Keqiang also sent a congratulatory message to Hun Sen on Tuesday.

A draft amendment to the Criminal Law was also reviewed at the session.

A amendment focus on better implementing the Communist Party of China and State laws and policies regarding the fight against corruption and the protection of persons involved in accordance with the law.

It refines stipulations concerning the investigation and retrial of people who commit crimes by persons in public positions.

On Tuesday afternoon, Zhao Jinping, chairman of the Centre of Directors of the NPC Standing Committee, presided over the closing meeting of the session.

The closing meeting, attended by 36 members of the NPC Standing Committee, approved the appointed appointments and removals.
City: Walkers charmed by urban life, history

People pose for a photo during a city walk in Jilin municipality's Nanjing District, Shanghai. (Photo/China Daily)

PEOPLE WALKING THROUGH CHINA (CITY)

Visit a wader through China to learn about the history of the city.

When he arrived the city of Nanjing, the first thing he saw was the Nanjing city wall, which is over 1,600 years old. The city wall is about 500 meters from the Nanjing University of the Arts, which is located on the Nanjing University Campus.

After walking through the urban landscape, the author was enthralled by the city's architectural beauty. The author found that the city's architecture is a mix of tradition and modernity, with many buildings combining traditional Chinese elements with contemporary design.

The city's history is also evident in its architecture. The author noted that the city wall is a symbol of the city's past, and it has been well-preserved. The city wall is about 500 meters long and is made of brick and stone.

The author also visited the Nanjing University of the Arts, which is located on the Nanjing University Campus. The university is one of the top universities in China and is known for its art and design programs.

The campus is beautiful, with many trees and flowers lining the paths. The university also has a large art museum, which features a wide range of art from around the world.

In conclusion, the author found Nanjing to be a charming city with a rich history and a vibrant urban landscape. The city wall and the Nanjing University of the Arts are just two examples of the city's many attractions. The author recommends visiting Nanjing for anyone interested in art and architecture.
Xi encourages HK students to build a better nation

By Zou Wei in Beijing and Chao Shangru in Hong Kong

President Xi Jinping has called on students from the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region to develop positive traits and shoulder the responsibility of building a better nation.

In a letter to students from a private school in Hong Kong, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi said that the students and their teachers should be deeply impressed by the recent outbreak of COVID-19 in Hong Kong.

The students and their teachers should be deeply impressed by the recent outbreak of COVID-19 in Hong Kong, President Xi said in his letter.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation. He also expressed his hope that the students could be more confident in the future.

The students and their teachers should be deeply impressed by the recent outbreak of COVID-19 in Hong Kong, President Xi said in his letter.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation. He also expressed his hope that the students could be more confident in the future.

The students and their teachers should be deeply impressed by the recent outbreak of COVID-19 in Hong Kong, President Xi said in his letter.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation. He also expressed his hope that the students could be more confident in the future.

The students and their teachers should be deeply impressed by the recent outbreak of COVID-19 in Hong Kong, President Xi said in his letter.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation. He also expressed his hope that the students could be more confident in the future.

The students and their teachers should be deeply impressed by the recent outbreak of COVID-19 in Hong Kong, President Xi said in his letter.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation. He also expressed his hope that the students could be more confident in the future.

The students and their teachers should be deeply impressed by the recent outbreak of COVID-19 in Hong Kong, President Xi said in his letter.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation. He also expressed his hope that the students could be more confident in the future.

The students and their teachers should be deeply impressed by the recent outbreak of COVID-19 in Hong Kong, President Xi said in his letter.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation. He also expressed his hope that the students could be more confident in the future.

The students and their teachers should be deeply impressed by the recent outbreak of COVID-19 in Hong Kong, President Xi said in his letter.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation. He also expressed his hope that the students could be more confident in the future.

The students and their teachers should be deeply impressed by the recent outbreak of COVID-19 in Hong Kong, President Xi said in his letter.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation. He also expressed his hope that the students could be more confident in the future.

The students and their teachers should be deeply impressed by the recent outbreak of COVID-19 in Hong Kong, President Xi said in his letter.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation. He also expressed his hope that the students could be more confident in the future.

The students and their teachers should be deeply impressed by the recent outbreak of COVID-19 in Hong Kong, President Xi said in his letter.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation. He also expressed his hope that the students could be more confident in the future.

The students and their teachers should be deeply impressed by the recent outbreak of COVID-19 in Hong Kong, President Xi said in his letter.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation. He also expressed his hope that the students could be more confident in the future.

The students and their teachers should be deeply impressed by the recent outbreak of COVID-19 in Hong Kong, President Xi said in his letter.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation. He also expressed his hope that the students could be more confident in the future.

The students and their teachers should be deeply impressed by the recent outbreak of COVID-19 in Hong Kong, President Xi said in his letter.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation. He also expressed his hope that the students could be more confident in the future.

The students and their teachers should be deeply impressed by the recent outbreak of COVID-19 in Hong Kong, President Xi said in his letter.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation. He also expressed his hope that the students could be more confident in the future.

The students and their teachers should be deeply impressed by the recent outbreak of COVID-19 in Hong Kong, President Xi said in his letter.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation. He also expressed his hope that the students could be more confident in the future.

The students and their teachers should be deeply impressed by the recent outbreak of COVID-19 in Hong Kong, President Xi said in his letter.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation. He also expressed his hope that the students could be more confident in the future.

The students and their teachers should be deeply impressed by the recent outbreak of COVID-19 in Hong Kong, President Xi said in his letter.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation. He also expressed his hope that the students could be more confident in the future.

The students and their teachers should be deeply impressed by the recent outbreak of COVID-19 in Hong Kong, President Xi said in his letter.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation. He also expressed his hope that the students could be more confident in the future.

The students and their teachers should be deeply impressed by the recent outbreak of COVID-19 in Hong Kong, President Xi said in his letter.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation. He also expressed his hope that the students could be more confident in the future.

The students and their teachers should be deeply impressed by the recent outbreak of COVID-19 in Hong Kong, President Xi said in his letter.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation. He also expressed his hope that the students could be more confident in the future.

The students and their teachers should be deeply impressed by the recent outbreak of COVID-19 in Hong Kong, President Xi said in his letter.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation. He also expressed his hope that the students could be more confident in the future.

The students and their teachers should be deeply impressed by the recent outbreak of COVID-19 in Hong Kong, President Xi said in his letter.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation. He also expressed his hope that the students could be more confident in the future.

The students and their teachers should be deeply impressed by the recent outbreak of COVID-19 in Hong Kong, President Xi said in his letter.

In his reply to a letter from students of the school, President Xi pointed out that students and teachers are important foundations of the nation.
Viral village basketball tournament stirs nerves, excitement

By ZHANG JIE in Beijing, XINHUA NEWS AGENCY in Qiandongnan and NSD/FARA in Shanghai

A nervous Li Zizhou could feel his heart beating hard as he prepared to play basketball in front of over 1000 spectators.

After the game started, the sound of the ball thudding and the crowd shouting drowned out the pounding of his heart.

The competition began at 9pm on Sunday, and villagers of the age of 6 to 10 were participating in the "Tongtian Village" competition, dubbed "Village Ball RAF" as an annual cultural and sports event in Qiandongnan county in Guizhou province's Qiandongnan Prefecture.

The simple, amateurish but highly enthusiastic basketball tournament became a massive gathering attracting about 1000 villagers from all over the county as well as an event that was introduced to the national media.

This year's event was held from July 8 to 10, with 80 teams taking part representing local villages from 30 to 40, students from junior grades from 4 to 10 years old, and workers from 20 to 30 years old.

Li, a resident of Tongtian village, said she was so thrilled to participate in a basketball competition in different village that she couldn't help breaking into tears.

"We all live in the houses of 12 people, seven of whom are school-aged. We have never played basketball before, as there is no one to form a team from among these students," Li said.

"Villagers get to see, as many of our children have never been off the mountain and had never played on such a big court," she said. "We had a men's and a women's team, and the whole village was over, and we are practicing every day. I really wish we could do this in other villages," she said.

"Winning a championship in like village basketball tournament would be a dream," Li said.

But Li Zizhou and several other villagers worked hard for the last two weeks, with the coaching, competition, and all the preparations held to wonderful order.

"Everyone in the village talked about basketball all the time. We went to the village celebrated with banquets and had a night party. We even looked for a bus in the village committee office," Li said.

Liu Sheng, head of Tame Village, and organizer of the Village Ball RAF competition, said the plans for the event were set up for the event from last year.

"The event has been held for more than five years, and we are proud that it would go viral," he said.

"We have a very rural and healthy atmosphere in the village, and we are very capable of making small children like playing basketball. The village is the most important part," the village's principal, said.

Li Zizhou, a 10-year-old villager of the Year 81, and his twin also have never been seen playing other games over the past few days.

The two go to school together in the same village, and they both look forward to participating in the event.

"We are happy that the VRAF became an international sensation last year, and we feel like playing basketball in the village," Li Zizhou said.

With more tourists from around the country flocking to the village to watch the games, it has brought more revenue to the village, and villagers are thinking about finding a job in the village to make money, such as the children of another child, said.

"I hope everyone will come here and feel the camping and sporting atmosphere," the said.

Contact the writer at zhonghuan@163.com

HK students going to astronaut camp

By MIKE KU in Hong Kong

Thirty Hong Kong secondary students will embark on a journey to experience the country’s achievements in space science and technology.

During the eight-day Young Astronaut Training 2023, they will visit key space observatory sites, conduct a blindfold and face-to-face communication with space experts.

The camp is the 12th of its kind, with its annual activity running from July 8 to 15, during which the students will go to three mainland cities – Beijing, Shanghai and Nanjing.

The camp is organized by the China National Space Administration (CNSA) and the Chinese Society for Astronomy.

The students will also experience outdoor activities, like hiking in the Yangtze River Valley.

The camp is a unique program designed to give students a chance to learn about space science and technology.

The students will have the opportunity to visit key space observatories, including the Space Observation Center, the National Astronomical Observatories, and the Shanghai Astronomical Observatory.

The camp will provide an educational experience for students interested in astronomy and space science.

In addition to visits to space observatories, the students will also have the opportunity to learn about the latest developments in space science and technology.

They will also have the chance to meet with experts in the field, including astronauts, scientists, and engineers.

These experts will share their experiences and insights with the students, providing them with a unique opportunity to learn from those who have dedicated their lives to space exploration and research.

The camp is open to students from all over the country, and applications are now being accepted for the 2024 program.

Students interested in applying should visit the Young Astronaut Training 2024 website for more information and to submit their application.

The deadline for applications is June 30, 2024.

Contact the writer at youngastronauts@space.gov.cn

Tourism operators expect profit gains

By CHEN HUI in Hong Kong

Tourism operators are expecting a recovery in the first half of the year, with travel restrictions easing and demand picking up.

According to the Ministry of Commerce, the country's tourism revenues reached 3.38 trillion yuan (53% above) in the first half of the year, a 1.2% year-on-year increase, mainly due to the recovery of domestic travel.

The ministry said that revenue generated from domestic tourism reached 1.3 trillion yuan (33% above), or 55% from the same period in 2019.

Thanks to the growing number of tourists, many tourism operators and companies predict that profit will likely be better than expected earnings from January to June.

For example, Xiangjiang Tourism, a local travel agency, saw its revenue increase by 2.7% year-on-year to 135 million yuan in the first six months, thanks to increasing revenue from its theme parks, hotels and sports businesses.

Trevor Paris said in the tourism market that new growth factors for the government generated in its report of "Management of Tourism in 2023.01 to 05.2023".

"People grew a growing desire to travel and spend on travel over the May Day holiday season because the tourism market has been in a continuous and full recovery. This is also because of the international and social factors." Paris said.

"In the current market, the government and the tourism industry have seen the benefits of many measures that have been taken.

"The government, being the president of the Tourism Ministry, projects consistent development," Paris said.

"High tourist capacity in the second half of the year, adding that the tourism market will experience new trends and competitions between the market, especially during public holidays.

"In the past half-year, the government developed a successful macroeconomic policy, but the Chinese community has to be aware that the tourism market is not yet fully recovered, especially during holidays, and the market is still in a recovery phase.

"In the second half of the year, the tourism market will experience new trends and competitions between the market, especially during public holidays, and the market is still in a recovery phase.

"In the past half-year, the government has taken a series of measures to support tourism, including the creation of tourism zones and the promotion of tourism-related activities, which have helped to stimulate tourism demand.

"In the second half of the year, the tourism market will experience new trends and competitions between the market, especially during public holidays, and the market is still in a recovery phase.

"In the past half-year, the government has taken a series of measures to support tourism, including the creation of tourism zones and the promotion of tourism-related activities, which have helped to stimulate tourism demand.

"In the second half of the year, the tourism market will experience new trends and competitions between the market, especially during public holidays, and the market is still in a recovery phase." Paris said.

"In the past half-year, the government has taken a series of measures to support tourism, including the creation of tourism zones and the promotion of tourism-related activities, which have helped to stimulate tourism demand.

"In the second half of the year, the tourism market will experience new trends and competitions between the market, especially during public holidays, and the market is still in a recovery phase." Paris said.

"In the past half-year, the government has taken a series of measures to support tourism, including the creation of tourism zones and the promotion of tourism-related activities, which have helped to stimulate tourism demand.

"In the second half of the year, the tourism market will experience new trends and competitions between the market, especially during public holidays, and the market is still in a recovery phase." Paris said.

"In the past half-year, the government has taken a series of measures to support tourism, including the creation of tourism zones and the promotion of tourism-related activities, which have helped to stimulate tourism demand.

"In the second half of the year, the tourism market will experience new trends and competitions between the market, especially during public holidays, and the market is still in a recovery phase." Paris said.

"In the past half-year, the government has taken a series of measures to support tourism, including the creation of tourism zones and the promotion of tourism-related activities, which have helped to stimulate tourism demand.

"In the second half of the year, the tourism market will experience new trends and competitions between the market, especially during public holidays, and the market is still in a recovery phase." Paris said.

"In the past half-year, the government has taken a series of measures to support tourism, including the creation of tourism zones and the promotion of tourism-related activities, which have helped to stimulate tourism demand.

"In the second half of the year, the tourism market will experience new trends and competitions between the market, especially during public holidays, and the market is still in a recovery phase." Paris said.

"In the past half-year, the government has taken a series of measures to support tourism, including the creation of tourism zones and the promotion of tourism-related activities, which have helped to stimulate tourism demand.

"In the second half of the year, the tourism market will experience new trends and competitions between the market, especially during public holidays, and the market is still in a recovery phase." Paris said.

"In the past half-year, the government has taken a series of measures to support tourism, including the creation of tourism zones and the promotion of tourism-related activities, which have helped to stimulate tourism demand.

"In the second half of the year, the tourism market will experience new trends and competitions between the market, especially during public holidays, and the market is still in a recovery phase." Paris said.

"In the past half-year, the government has taken a series of measures to support tourism, including the creation of tourism zones and the promotion of tourism-related activities, which have helped to stimulate tourism demand.

"In the second half of the year, the tourism market will experience new trends and competitions between the market, especially during public holidays, and the market is still in a recovery phase." Paris said.

"In the past half-year, the government has taken a series of measures to support tourism, including the creation of tourism zones and the promotion of tourism-related activities, which have helped to stimulate tourism demand.

"In the second half of the year, the tourism market will experience new trends and competitions between the market, especially during public holidays, and the market is still in a recovery phase." Paris said.

"In the past half-year, the government has taken a series of measures to support tourism, including the creation of tourism zones and the promotion of tourism-related activities, which have helped to stimulate tourism demand.

"In the second half of the year, the tourism market will experience new trends and competitions between the market, especially during public holidays, and the market is still in a recovery phase." Paris said.

"In the past half-year, the government has taken a series of measures to support tourism, including the creation of tourism zones and the promotion of tourism-related activities, which have helped to stimulate tourism demand.

"In the second half of the year, the tourism market will experience new trends and competitions between the market, especially during public holidays, and the market is still in a recovery phase." Paris said.

"In the past half-year, the government has taken a series of measures to support tourism, including the creation of tourism zones and the promotion of tourism-related activities, which have helped to stimulate tourism demand.

"In the second half of the year, the tourism market will experience new trends and competitions between the market, especially during public holidays, and the market is still in a recovery phase." Paris said.
Regulation on consular protection unveiled

Stronger rules to ensure lives and rights of nationals, businesses abroad welcomed

By Xu Yuttke
China Daily

The latest regulation on consular protection and assistance will guarantee the safety of the lives and interests of Chinese citizens abroad as well as that of increasing number of residents and business activities going global, senior officials and experts said.

The Regulation on Consular Affairs, unveiled by the State Council on July 14, clarified the responsibilities of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, State Council departments and Chinese diplomatic missions overseas in terms of offering consular protection and assistance.

It was released following the growing number of evacuations and cases of consular protection in recent years.

According to the Foreign Ministry, China has organized nearly 20 evacuations and had handled more than 500,000 cases of consular protection involving millions of Chinese nationals.

The 24-hour hotline for consular assistance received around 1.2 billion calls since it launched in January 2009, with 50,000 cases handled by China’s overseas diplomatic missions each year and the hotline received 300,000 phone calls.

Foreign Minister Wang Yi, a new briefing on July 14 said the ministry will take steps to improve the consular protection assistance system while encouraging insurance companies, banks and other institutions to get involved in the protection services.

He said the ministry encourages citizens abroad to seek help in traveling, to register through the ministry’s app or the mobile app to secure better access to consular services.

Meanwhile, the ministry will keep close tabs on global security situations to ensure they can issue timely warnings. Despatched.

Xu Liping, professor of diplomacy at the China Foreign Affairs University in Beijing, said that the increasing number of Chinese workers abroad is facing security risks and challenges.

She cited figures showing that the number of Chinese citizens and businesses suffering from security issues is increasing at a rate of 30 percent a year since the introduction of legislation in this regard.

She said that one of the major highlights of the new regulation is that it makes clear that overseas Chinese and business entities responsible for consular protection.

The regulation also listed elections in which Chinese citizens and businesses abroad suffer from terrorism, racial, religious, and racial discrimination that diplomat missions overseas cannot do anything about.

In one of the most recent operations, during which some 200 citizens were evacuated from the war in Ukraine, the consular department of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs handled the evacuation of the Chinese citizens and 218 non-Chinese nationals.

According to the Ministry of Commerce, there were about 2.8 million Chinese businesses overseas as of the end of last year in 90 countries and regions. The number of Chinese citizens now employed overseas reached 2 million.

Yao Wei, Chinese ambassador to Bangladesh, said that the increasing number of projects being implemented under the Belt and Road initiative has sparked Chinese business and to seek opportunities abroad, which has also led to the expansion of the country’s interests overseas.

He explained that the complex global security landscape and market uncertainties for consular protection, have made work even more challenging for Chinese overseas diplomatic missions.

In Bangladesh, one of the most densely populated countries in the world, there are now around 3,000 Chinese nationals and 600 businesses.

He said that challenges to ensure protection are particularly notable this year, with domestic politics heating up in Bangladesh próximo to hold a general election in January next year.

The ambassador had also taken steps to guarantee safety of Chinese businesses and nationals as top priority.

He said that there are still new challenges for consular protection work.

China’s overseas missions and institutions should continue to actively work to ensure the safety and interests of citizens and institutions.

A pilot case in Vietnam has been particularly challenging since 2018, when a civil war broke out in the Africa country, leading to a major humanitarian crisis.

Since then the embassy has been trying to do all it can to offer consular protection and assistance.

Entry, residency process for families of foreign executives eased

By Xu Yuttke

Recent efforts to improve the business and investment environment, including measures to facilitate the settlement of qualified executives and their family members, have been rolled out mainly to attract more investment and deepen the global economic cooperation. To a policy document published on Sunday, the number of investment agreements in China’s top 20 cities has increased by 76 percent in the first five trade zones — Shanghai, Shenzhen, Guangzhou, Tianjin, Foshan and Xi’an, as well as the Hainan Free Trade Port, part of an effort to boost institutional opening-up.

Space and family members of executives who have been transferred to foreign invested business entities or state-owned enterprises or their family members will be allowed to enter China more easily and residency periods as excesses.

Meanwhile, enterprises of foreign business planning to establish new subsidiaries in China’s first-tier cities or access the China mainland maintenance 27 percent of foreign investment in China, which includes 35 percent of the country’s total.

The change came after foreign investment in China’s mainland maintained 27 percent of foreign direct investment in China (FDI), which is the first half of the Ministry of Commerce, a news conference that the measures are intended to help foreign executives bring their families to China, and to make the country more attractive to global talent.

The measure to extend the period of stay for foreign executives opening new branches in five trade zones will help attract foreign investment, in addition. The change will also lower barriers to the China mainland. Hence, the residence, the incuba ment.

Transport, based on the administration of pilot free trade zone and free trade port in the Ministry of Commerce, the data showed.

Yan Hu, a secretary general at the Center for China and Globalization, a Beijing-based think tank, said the move to ease entry and residency rules for foreign executives and their families indicates a stronger move to attract foreign direct investment.

The move to attract overseas Chinese to return home is suitable for China’s commitment to open more deeply into the global economy, and also in its ambition to spur high-quality growth through an influx of foreign expertise and innovative projects. The policy will also help attract overseas Chinese to return home, helping to inject new vitality into the global economy.

Other key measures in the policy document include ensuring that Chinese and foreign financial institutions have the same access to the opening of new services and liberalization of the financial services.

Individuals and businesses will be allowed to purchase financial services from overseas, and the cross-border flows of financial resources will be transferred in and out of China freely and without delay. The Ministry of Commerce, a news conference that the measures are intended to help foreign executives bring their families to China, and to make the country more attractive to global talent.

The measure to extend the period of stay for foreign executives opening new branches in five trade zones will help attract foreign investment, in addition. The change will also lower barriers to the China mainland. Hence, the residence, the incubation.

Transport, based on the administration of pilot free trade zone and free trade port in the Ministry of Commerce, the data showed.

Yan Hu, a secretary general at the Center for China and Globalization, a Beijing-based think tank, said the move to ease entry and residency rules for foreign executives and their families indicates a stronger move to attract foreign direct investment.

The move to attract overseas Chinese to return home is suitable for China’s commitment to open more deeply into the global economy, and also in its ambition to spur high-quality growth through an influx of foreign expertise and innovative projects. The policy will also help attract overseas Chinese to return home, helping to inject new vitality into the global economy.
Online shopping, high rents take a toll on US retail stores

Pandemic deals severe blow to 2,400 big-box outlets across country close

Amazon Go, the online retailer’s bricks-and-mortar store concept, will close three stores this year — two in New York, three in San Francisco. The stores have no checkout counter and are self-attended.

In March, Fast Hooker, which sells sneakers and apparel, said it was closing its flagship store in San Francisco and one in Los Angeles. It also plans to shut 125 Champion locations nationwide, leaving it with 300 smaller stores. According to the San Francisco Chronicle, about 26,000 people were employed in the retail industry in the Bay Area in 2020.

Despite the rebound in the pandemic, many of these businesses are still struggling. Some retailers are closing stores or downsizing. Others are just holding on, hoping for a better day.

A grocery store has closed in downtown Fort Worth, TX.

Amazon Go, the online retailer’s bricks-and-mortar store concept, will close three stores this year — two in New York, three in San Francisco. The stores have no checkout counter and are self-attended.

In March, Fast Hooker, which sells sneakers and apparel, said it was closing its flagship store in San Francisco and one in Los Angeles. It also plans to shut 125 Champion locations nationwide, leaving it with 300 smaller stores. According to the San Francisco Chronicle, about 26,000 people were employed in the retail industry in the Bay Area in 2020.

Despite the rebound in the pandemic, many of these businesses are still struggling. Some retailers are closing stores or downsizing. Others are just holding on, hoping for a better day.

A grocery store has closed in downtown Fort Worth, TX.

Amazon Go, the online retailer’s bricks-and-mortar store concept, will close three stores this year — two in New York, three in San Francisco. The stores have no checkout counter and are self-attended.

In March, Fast Hooker, which sells sneakers and apparel, said it was closing its flagship store in San Francisco and one in Los Angeles. It also plans to shut 125 Champion locations nationwide, leaving it with 300 smaller stores. According to the San Francisco Chronicle, about 26,000 people were employed in the retail industry in the Bay Area in 2020.

Despite the rebound in the pandemic, many of these businesses are still struggling. Some retailers are closing stores or downsizing. Others are just holding on, hoping for a better day.

A grocery store has closed in downtown Fort Worth, TX.

Amazon Go, the online retailer’s bricks-and-mortar store concept, will close three stores this year — two in New York, three in San Francisco. The stores have no checkout counter and are self-attended.

In March, Fast Hooker, which sells sneakers and apparel, said it was closing its flagship store in San Francisco and one in Los Angeles. It also plans to shut 125 Champion locations nationwide, leaving it with 300 smaller stores. According to the San Francisco Chronicle, about 26,000 people were employed in the retail industry in the Bay Area in 2020.

Despite the rebound in the pandemic, many of these businesses are still struggling. Some retailers are closing stores or downsizing. Others are just holding on, hoping for a better day.

A grocery store has closed in downtown Fort Worth, TX.

Amazon Go, the online retailer’s bricks-and-mortar store concept, will close three stores this year — two in New York, three in San Francisco. The stores have no checkout counter and are self-attended.

In March, Fast Hooker, which sells sneakers and apparel, said it was closing its flagship store in San Francisco and one in Los Angeles. It also plans to shut 125 Champion locations nationwide, leaving it with 300 smaller stores. According to the San Francisco Chronicle, about 26,000 people were employed in the retail industry in the Bay Area in 2020.
by YING WHEE WANG

A potential move to impeach US President Joe Biden has gained momentum following remarks by House Speaker McCarthy. McCarthy found the possibility of an impeachment inquiry for the last week of the House Judiciary Committee, the body that handles impeachment investigations. The move is expected to be carried out by a majority of party leaders and is aimed at the president's handling of the border crisis.

"This is a call to the floor of the House to investigate the actions of the President in the context of the immigration crisis," McCarthy told reporters. "We have a duty to our constituents, to our nation, and to our constitutional duty to hold the President accountable for his actions.

The House Judiciary Committee has already held its first hearing with testimony from former Homeland Security Secretary Alejandro Mayorkas. The hearing was focused on the administration's handling of immigration issues.

McCarthy also met with House Republicans to discuss the possibility of an impeachment inquiry. He told reporters that the goal is to ensure that the administration is held accountable for its actions.

"We need to hold this President accountable," McCarthy said. "We need to make sure that he is not above the law, that he is not above the Constitution, and that he is not above the House of Representatives.

The impeachment inquiry is expected to be announced within the next few days, with a vote scheduled for later this week.

by BENJAMIN LEE

Chinese fast-fashion giants make gains in US

by MINGMEI LI

Chinese fast-fashion brands have been making significant gains in the US market. The success of these brands has been driven by a combination of factors, including their lower prices, trendy designs, and strong online presence.

Most of the Chinese fast-fashion giants are based in the major cities of China, such as Shanghai and Guangzhou. They produce clothing and accessories at a lower cost than their Western counterparts, allowing them to offer lower prices to US consumers.

The US market is also seeing an increase in the number of Chinese fast-fashion brands. This growth is partly due to the increasing popularity of Chinese culture and fashion in the US. With the growth of Chinese Fast Fashion, American consumers are increasingly interested in Chinese styles and trends.

by DAILY NEW YORK TIMES

US asylum restrictions

The US government has announced new restrictions on asylum seekers. The changes are part of a broader effort to tighten immigration policies and reduce the number of asylum seekers entering the country.

The new rules, which are set to take effect in the coming weeks, will make it more difficult for individuals to file asylum claims. The government is also expanding the grounds for denying asylum, including cases of fraud,material misrepresentation, and criminal activity.

The changes are part of a larger effort to address the US asylum crisis, which has been growing in recent years. The number of asylum seekers entering the US has more than doubled since 2014, and the backlog of cases is growing.

The new rules are likely to have a significant impact on the number of asylum seekers entering the US. The government estimates that the changes will lead to a significant decrease in the number of asylum claims filed.

by Daily News

Judge blocks US asylum restrictions

A federal judge has issued a temporary restraining order blocking the US government's new restrictions on asylum seekers. The judge ruled that the new rules would cause significant harm to individuals seeking asylum and would violate constitutional rights.

The new rules, which were announced last month, would exclude certain categories of individuals from filing asylum claims. The judge found that the rules were likely to cause harm to individuals seeking asylum and that they would violate constitutional rights.

The judge's decision is likely to be appealed by the US government. However, it could provide a significant victory for individuals seeking asylum and for those opposed to the new restrictions.
Market mavens foresee more equity boosters

By ZHENG ZHONG in Shanghai

With the A-share market rebounding strongly throughout Tuesday in response to fresh signs of support for the capital market expected from the authorities, the rally has begun to boost stock-market performance generally. Most experts believe that the market’s initiative can be expected to last at least several days.

On Monday, a meeting of the Political Bureau of the Communist Party of China Central Committee said that the country needs to maintain the capital market and capital economy.

The news-setting meeting ameliorated the current economic situation and reinvigorated the economic wind. The market responded strongly. In response, the benchmark Hang Seng Index rose 2.33 percent and the Shanghai Composite Index climbed 2.5 percent on Tuesday.

A public mood of optimism is of utmost importance to boost market confidence, said Meng Lei, China equities strategist at Credit Suisse, saying the index is about to reach an important turning point.

Tuesday’s move was the result of reports that the government was likely to release bailout funds and support the market in the near future.

The government’s actions, including a new round of measures to support the economy, were seen as a positive signal to the market.

On July 5, China’s National Finance and Development Council released a draft plan to promote the development of the capital market, which indicated that the central government was likely to increase the capital supply and strengthen the capital market.

The draft plan also proposed to strengthen the regulation of the capital market and improve the quality of listed companies.

By YAN KEFEI

China’s flourishing stock market is expected to see more listings this year, with the government set to boost the economy with new capital.

The government has already announced plans to increase the number of listings in the A-share market by about 40% this year, with the goal of raising more than 100 billion yuan ($15 billion) through new equity offerings.

China, South Asia ties on upswing

By ZHOUJING NIAN in Beijing and HONG YUAN in New Delhi

China and South Asia enjoy extensive collaboration and their fruitful cooperation is expected to be crucial drivers of economic growth. Both sides have established close diplomatic and economic relations.

China, as the largest developing country, supports South Asian nations by organizing meetings and important decision-making forums, hosting economic and trade discussions, and participating in regional economic organizations.

The two sides have deepened their cooperation and have agreed to continue to support each other's development. China will continue to support South Asia's economic development and will aim to achieve a mutual benefit. The two sides will continue to carry out various economic cooperation projects, including infrastructure development, trade, and investment.

The two sides have agreed to strengthen their cooperation in the fields of trade, investment, and infrastructure development. They will also continue to support each other's development and will work together to achieve a win-win outcome.

Chinese Premier Li Keqiang and Indian Prime Minister Narendra Modi had a phone call on July 5, and both sides reaffirmed their commitment to strengthening their cooperation.

China and South Asia will continue to cooperate closely in areas such as trade, investment, infrastructure development, and cultural exchanges. The two sides will continue to support each other's development and work together to achieve a win-win outcome.

The two sides have agreed to deepen their cooperation in various fields, including trade, investment, infrastructure development, and cultural exchanges. They have committed to continuing their close cooperation and working together for mutual benefit.
Chinese firms recognize advantages in region to boost internationalization

By ZHOU WEIYING in Shanghai (chinadaily.com.cn)

Lower costs, a more friendly business environment and greater cultural affinity are some of the factors that are driving Chinese enterprises to explore international expansion in Asia, industry observers say.

According to the International Labour Organization, per capita monthly income in 2021 in Vietnam and Indonesia was 1,550 and 670, respectively. Labor costs have increased significantly in China as well, especially manufacturers, to expand into Southeast Asia and South Asia. Southeast Asia and South Asia are economic regions where China’s market share has been shrinking. The experienced laborers below 35 there are fairly high,” said Nancy Li, the newly appointed China country manager at LinkedIn, adding that LinkedIn is exploring a new talent networking platform.

“A big difference is that Chinese employees in Southeast Asia are better, having better pay, better supervision by management and better development opportunities,” Ms. Li said. LinkedIn data shows that recruitment isn’t the biggest challenge in Southeast Asia, and the biggest challenge becomes the talent retention problem. China, however, faces the same problem. The company believes that the Southeast Asia market is getting more attractive for foreign employers.

“By providing solutions in salaried jobs, LinkedIn will continue to empower businesses in the region to attract and retain the best talent,” she added.

China’s property market continues to face uneven growth between different departments and regions. In recent years, Jakarta has seen strong growth, as well as economic growth and infrastructure projects. However, owing to tight sched- ules of daily work and long hours of work, the real estate market was cooled down in the last 30 years.

The fourth quarter, in particular, showed signs of cooling. According to market reports, new home sales have declined by 10 percent in the first quarter of 2022 compared to last year, while new home sales have remained flat in the last 12 months.

The second quarter of 2022 saw a surge in consumer purchasing, particularly in the luxury and fashion sectors. Consumer sentiment has remained positive, with a significant increase in consumer spending in the second quarter of 2022.

“Prices and promotions have influenced consumer sentiment. While prices have increased, promotions and discounts have also been offered to stimulate consumer spending,” a report by Euromonitor said.

The smooth completion of the construction barrier has laid a solid foundation for advancing Nanjing Railway Station’s systematic upgrade project...

Huang Hui, engineer with the China Railway 24th Bureau Group Co Ltd

The smooth completion of the construction barrier has laid a solid foundation for advancing Nanjing Railway Station’s systematic upgrade project.

“Nanjing Railway Station is a key passenger terminal and the railway interchanges in Nanjing,” said Huang Hui, engineer with the China Railway 24th Bureau Group Co Ltd.

The project began in July 2017 and is expected to be completed by 2022. The project involves the modernization of the Nanjing Railway Station, which is the largest railway station in China.

The project includes the construction of a new main building, the renovation of existing buildings, and the enlargement of the passenger facilities. The new main building will feature a modern design with a capacity of 10 million passengers per year. The project will also involve the construction of a new railway line and the renovation of existing railway tracks.

The project is expected to be completed by 2022 and will be the largest railway station in China. The station will be equipped with state-of-the-art facilities and will be able to handle a large number of passengers per day. The project will also involve the construction of a new railway line and the renovation of existing railway tracks.

The project is expected to be completed by 2022 and will be the largest railway station in China. The station will be equipped with state-of-the-art facilities and will be able to handle a large number of passengers per day. The project will also involve the construction of a new railway line and the renovation of existing railway tracks.

The project is expected to be completed by 2022 and will be the largest railway station in China. The station will be equipped with state-of-the-art facilities and will be able to handle a large number of passengers per day. The project will also involve the construction of a new railway line and the renovation of existing railway tracks.

The project is expected to be completed by 2022 and will be the largest railway station in China. The station will be equipped with state-of-the-art facilities and will be able to handle a large number of passengers per day. The project will also involve the construction of a new railway line and the renovation of existing railway tracks.

The project is expected to be completed by 2022 and will be the largest railway station in China. The station will be equipped with state-of-the-art facilities and will be able to handle a large number of passengers per day. The project will also involve the construction of a new railway line and the renovation of existing railway tracks.

The project is expected to be completed by 2022 and will be the largest railway station in China. The station will be equipped with state-of-the-art facilities and will be able to handle a large number of passengers per day. The project will also involve the construction of a new railway line and the renovation of existing railway tracks.

The project is expected to be completed by 2022 and will be the largest railway station in China. The station will be equipped with state-of-the-art facilities and will be able to handle a large number of passengers per day. The project will also involve the construction of a new railway line and the renovation of existing railway tracks.

The project is expected to be completed by 2022 and will be the largest railway station in China. The station will be equipped with state-of-the-art facilities and will be able to handle a large number of passengers per day. The project will also involve the construction of a new railway line and the renovation of existing railway tracks.

The project is expected to be completed by 2022 and will be the largest railway station in China. The station will be equipped with state-of-the-art facilities and will be able to handle a large number of passengers per day. The project will also involve the construction of a new railway line and the renovation of existing railway tracks.

The project is expected to be completed by 2022 and will be the largest railway station in China. The station will be equipped with state-of-the-art facilities and will be able to handle a large number of passengers per day. The project will also involve the construction of a new railway line and the renovation of existing railway tracks.
Protective clothing market sizzles as awareness rises

Manufacturers rake in profits as more people cover up to block harmful UV rays

By WANG KEJU

Wearing a wide-vented visor, a pair of protective sunglasses, a cold-shoulder face mask and a lightweight yet water-proof jacket, Bo Xuan has become essential on sunny days for Guo Yuan, who works for a pharmaceutical company in Beijing.

On her way to work, Guo, with a pencil in hand, crosses parades with women who wrapped up in a whole package of sun-protection gear from head to toe.

Making any form of makeup would make the 29-year-old Guo Yuan appear as wearable products for sensation skin types like her are more essential than sunscreen to shield from harmful UV exposure.

"When it comes to shielding myself from the sun, I am an expert who can talk about ways more than just throwing on sunscreen," Guo said, adding that she has spent plenty of time and money on selecting more effective and fashion-forward sun-protection clothing and accessories.

Guo is one of the thousands of people that are part of the Chinese sun-protection market that is growing with a scorching speed, along with people's rising awareness about the harm of ultraviolet rays.

While monopolistic sun-protection businesses, such as sunscreen brands, continue to benefit from Chinese people's fear of harmful UV exposure due to health and beauty reasons, protective clothing and accessories have rapidly gaining traction.

According to a report by China Insights Consultancy, a Shanghai-based independent firm, sales of sun-protection clothing in China expanded from 6.2 billion yuan ($960 million) in 2018 to 61 billion yuan in 2022 and are expected to reach 96.4 billion yuan in 2025.

During the recently concluded 618 shopping festival, China's outdoor household, Zhang, a 23-year-old postgraduate student in Xi'an, used Tmall, the online shopping platform of Alibaba, to buy several sets of sun-protection products, that are both functional and fashionable.

Zhang bought a matching youngman jacket that dyes the user's current fashion and aesthetics, as well as a pair of coats and shorts with glasses with a style-sharing platform, Tmall.

"When sun-protection clothing began to enter popularity around 2018, I was very interested in it to understand the difference," he said. "There are many fashionable choices that use high-end materials in a shade and patterns that keep the sun away from the hottest trends, but they also can’t be ignored.

Statistics from the data analytics platform for e-commerce persons for Beijing-based (D2C) Consulting show that retail sales of sun-protection clothing in China surged 70.38 percent year-on-year and amounted to over 58 million yuan in May alone.

Chen Wanzong, an analyst in the apparel and footwear industry, said that such consumer demand is a result of the pursuit of fair skin tone that has been realized by Chinese people for decades, who are increasingly concerned about the harmful effects of melanin rays with skin cancer and accelerated aging being the biggest threats.

Unlike lotions and creams, these sun-protection products are wearable. Thus, they provide the added values of fashion on top of their original functions, Chen said. "That Chinese women, biased by consumers with strong buying power, often take the category of 'beauty' to define the products.

"Manufacturers have been incorporating novel techniques to enable moisture-wicking properties and a lightweight feel while still offering protection from harmful rays. In addition, they are also introducing new designs that can be worn by men and women.

"We have also studied a wide variety of styles to meet people's individual needs in different scenes such as sports, running, cycling, and camping, he added.

According to Chinese consumer information provider Tianyaanda, the number of purchases involved in the sun-protection clothing industry was as high as 240 million more than before, which has not only opened new homegrown brands, such as Swouder and Oldham, but also provided fertile ground for existing brands like Bosideng, a major manufacturer of down suits.

Zhang Gaofeng, chief financial officer and vice-president of Bosideng, said that the quality or sun-protection clothing is benchmarked against the down jacket market, and they have a good reputation among consumers.

The company has prioritized both aesthetics and function in its clothing to attract fashion-conscious consumers; customers, ratios reached over 200,000 yuan (US$26,700) in the last two months, with a significant increase compared to the same period one year ago, according to Zhu.

Chai Zhenhun, an analyst at the research institute of China ecommerce about 50, said that the trick for manufacturers is offering effective protection from direct rays without compromising on trendy designs.

"Designing stylish and comfortable products that demand love to an individual's wardrobe can prove to be the key to a piece," Chai said. "We have been using a variety of colors and patterns to cater to different tastes and styles.

A set of green pants, blue shirt, and top with a pair of sunglasses is suitable for the men's market, while a set of pink pants, a hooded shirt, and a hat is suitable for the women's market.

The demand is also fueled by the growing awareness of the dangerous effects of UV exposure affecting China on a large scale this summer, as the sun has already hit temperatures of over 40°C.

According to Chinese National Meteorological Centre, some areas surpassed 45°C for days in certain areas of Hebei, Hubei, and Henan provinces, as well as the municipalities of Beijing and Tianjin, which triggered widespread heat warnings, the highest in China's temperature warning system for high temperatures.

"We also recommend that people should wear sun-protection clothing, such as a hat, a shirt, and sunglasses, to protect against UV radiation.

"The good news is that the changes of too much sun shouldn't be exaggerated. Indeed, our people should be educated to properly understand the rule of “too much” sun exposure and evaluate reasonably.

Modern exposure to ultraviolet radiation may play a role in skin aging, which is associated with widening wrinkles and less sun-protection vitamin D, Wang added.

By LI YIJUN

Chinese beauty ideals, with the pursuit of fair skin being front and center, have been working alongside ancient times. However, it's only recently that they have become a real concern for Chinese people, leading to the rapid rise of sun-protection clothing in China.

A growing number of people, made up of more women than men, in different regions are now taking the trend and showing their own beauty standards on social media platforms like WeChat and Weibo as the Chinese society has seen a trend that includes both men and women of all ages.

On Xiaohongshu, a Chinese lifestyle-sharing platform, there are more than 92,000 posts with the hashtag "Shading" when both male and female bloggers display their glowing skin after giving their diverse and modern.png

"When I left the United Kingdom in 2019 to participate in postgraduate studies in the United Kingdom, I was a little concerned about my skin colouring on the campus because my fair skin and I dressed exposure to sun-block an essential measure." Zhang said.

Inspired by her college classmates' great enthusiasm towards outdoor activities, Zhang, who wanted to take advantage of her weekend free time, took to hiking, cycling, board-}

Beauty concept evolves with sun-kissed shades

Beauty concept evolves with sun-kissed shades

Beauty concept evolves with sun-kissed shades

Beauty concept evolves with sun-kissed shades

Beauty concept evolves with sun-kissed shades

Beauty concept evolves with sun-kissed shades
Cyberspace should not be a new battlefield

China and Europe have generally been on friendlier terms in recent years, for their economic interdependence and friendly political relations have formed a strong vise in which both sides have to cooperate on many issues. The two sides’ economic interdependence is particularly robust. In spite of all the geopolitical factors disrupting the cooperation, such as historical rivalries, coupled with the existential threat brought by global crises, suggests that the two sides will continue to work together.

According to the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development’s mobilization of all available resources for what it defines as strategic cooperation between “democracies and authoritarian regimes,” the European Union is a key ally for China. This is especially true for its upcoming visit to China. The EU and its nations must find a way to balance the pressure and cooperation to manage their differences.

The Chinese government has also made a clear statement that one must not approach cyberspace in the same way as it would negotiate with drug lords. The Chinese government has also indicated that it will not negotiate with the US on cyber issues.

The Chinese government has also made clear that it will not negotiate with the US on cyber issues. The Chinese government has also indicated that it will not negotiate with the US on cyber issues. The Chinese government has also indicated that it will not negotiate with the US on cyber issues.
Right decision to fight aggression, assist DPRK

J oly 27 marks the 70th anniversary of the armistice agreement that put an end to the Korean War (1950-1953) and formally ended the Korean War and Vietnam War in the Cold War era, which affected the whole world. This event is one of the most significant events of the 20th century. The armistice agreement was signed in the July 27, 1953, the Chinese People’s Volunteers (CPV) at the 38th parallel and in the armistice agreement, the United Nations Command (UNCOM) and the Chinese People’s Volunteers (CPV) signed the armistice agreement.

The armistice agreement was signed on July 27, 1953, and it was signed by the United Nations Command (UNCOM) and the Chinese People’s Volunteers (CPV), which marked the formal end of the Korean War. The armistice agreement was a turning point in the history of the Korean War, and it was a victory for the Chinese People’s Volunteers (CPV) and the United Nations Command (UNCOM). The armistice agreement was signed by the United Nations Command (UNCOM) and the Chinese People’s Volunteers (CPV), which marked the formal end of the Korean War. The armistice agreement was a turning point in the history of the Korean War, and it was a victory for the Chinese People’s Volunteers (CPV) and the United Nations Command (UNCOM). The armistice agreement was signed by the United Nations Command (UNCOM) and the Chinese People’s Volunteers (CPV), which marked the formal end of the Korean War. The armistice agreement was a turning point in the history of the Korean War, and it was a victory for the Chinese People’s Volunteers (CPV) and the United Nations Command (UNCOM). The armistice agreement was signed by the United Nations Command (UNCOM) and the Chinese People’s Volunteers (CPV), which marked the formal end of the Korean War. The armistice agreement was a turning point in the history of the Korean War, and it was a victory for the Chinese People’s Volunteers (CPV) and the United Nations Command (UNCOM). The armistice agreement was signed by the United Nations Command (UNCOM) and the Chinese People’s Volunteers (CPV), which marked the formal end of the Korean War. The armistice agreement was a turning point in the history of the Korean War, and it was a victory for the Chinese People’s Volunteers (CPV) and the United Nations Command (UNCOM). The armistice agreement was signed by the United Nations Command (UNCOM) and the Chinese People’s Volunteers (CPV), which marked the formal end of the Korean War. The armistice agreement was a turning point in the history of the Korean War, and it was a victory for the Chinese People’s Volunteers (CPV) and the United Nations Command (UNCOM).
Management principles

Globalization must be overcome to effectively address the increasingly severe and highly interconnected challenges the world faces

Four major deficits—the deficits in peace, development, security and governance—have emerged in the world, and the global governance deficit, especially the worsening and remarginalization of global issues such as climate change, the ecology and environmental crises, and the liberalization and facilitation of trade and investment, has become an important variable concerning the survival and prosperity of mankind, and has become a pressing attention from the international community.

In response to increasingly serious and highly interconnected global problems, the UN has forged the principles of multilateralism and the idea of win-win cooperation for global governance solutions to be discussed and debated, and also shows that reducing or eliminating the governance deficit is the common interest of people all over the world.

In the context of increasing terrorism and non-traditional global problems, and increasingly saturated and even intensified governance deficit, it is necessary to build a world order on the connotation of policy convergence, capacity building, and competition among major countries. The basis for this is the principles of multilateralism and the idea of win-win cooperation for global governance solutions to be discussed and debated, and also shows that reducing or eliminating the governance deficit is the common interest of people all over the world.

The First principle of sovereignty equality, an important principle that governed relations between countries for hundreds of years, and has become a common principle followed by the US and its agencies or organizations. The principle is that all states have the same principle of sovereignty equality that governance is based on the principle of equality, regardless of their size, strength or wealth. In the present circumstance, we must respect the principle of sovereignty equality, and cooperate to fulfill the legislative rights and interests of developing countries, only by adhering to this, the principle of sovereignty equality in the field of global governance can allow the equal rights of all countries to be realized.

The second principle is the principle of multilateralism, which refers to the fact that before the establishment and implementation of global governance rules, the consent of the countries concerned must be found by them must be obtained. This principle has been internationally recognized and is the key of global governance, and it has been explicitly written into thereements. The Paris Agreement establishes a series of options for climate change while also reflecting its corresponding commitments to reduce emissions, thereby creating a new global framework of climate change.

The first principle of sovereignty equality, an important principle that governed relations between countries for hundreds of years, and has become a common principle followed by the US and its agencies or organizations. The principle is that all states have the same principle of sovereignty equality that governance is based on the principle of equality, regardless of their size, strength or wealth. In the present circumstance, we must respect the principle of sovereignty equality, and cooperate to fulfill the legislative rights and interests of developing countries, only by adhering to this, the principle of sovereignty equality in the field of global governance can allow the equal rights of all countries to be realized.

The second principle is the principle of multilateralism, which refers to the fact that before the establishment and implementation of global governance rules, the consent of the countries concerned must be found by them must be obtained. This principle has been internationally recognized and is the key of global governance, and it has been explicitly written into the agreements. The Paris Agreement establishes a series of options for climate change while also reflecting its corresponding commitments to reduce emissions, thereby creating a new global framework of climate change.

The third is the principle of non-traditional global problems, which has been internationally recognized and is the key to global governance, and it has been explicitly written into the agreements. This principle has been internationally recognized and is the key of global governance, and it has been explicitly written into the agreements. The Paris Agreement establishes a series of options for climate change while also reflecting its corresponding commitments to reduce emissions, thereby creating a new global framework of climate change.

The fourth is the principle of the concept and practice of compensation. While the principle of sovereignty equality is a common principle observed between countries, it can also cause problems in other areas as well. In other words, the formulation of international policies and the making of laws or regulations can have a significant impact on the development of different countries. For instance, in terms of the international principle of sovereignty equality, for instance, the principle has been fully demonstrated in the US, the principle has been fully demonstrated in the US, and the principle has been fully demonstrated in the US, and the principle has been fully demonstrated in the US.

The third principle of compensation, however, has been widely recognized by the American, European and Japanese governments and policymakers. For instance, in terms of the international principle of sovereignty equality, for instance, the principle has been fully demonstrated in the US, the principle has been fully demonstrated in the US, and the principle has been fully demonstrated in the US, and the principle has been fully demonstrated in the US.

The third principle of compensation, however, has been widely recognized by the American, European and Japanese governments and policymakers. For instance, in terms of the international principle of sovereignty equality, for instance, the principle has been fully demonstrated in the US, the principle has been fully demonstrated in the US, and the principle has been fully demonstrated in the US, and the principle has been fully demonstrated in the US.

The third principle of compensation, however, has been widely recognized by the American, European and Japanese governments and policymakers. For instance, in terms of the international principle of sovereignty equality, for instance, the principle has been fully demonstrated in the US, the principle has been fully demonstrated in the US, and the principle has been fully demonstrated in the US, and the principle has been fully demonstrated in the US.

The third principle of compensation, however, has been widely recognized by the American, European and Japanese governments and policymakers. For instance, in terms of the international principle of sovereignty equality, for instance, the principle has been fully demonstrated in the US, the principle has been fully demonstrated in the US, and the principle has been fully demonstrated in the US, and the principle has been fully demonstrated in the US.

The third principle of compensation, however, has been widely recognized by the American, European and Japanese governments and policymakers. For instance, in terms of the international principle of sovereignty equality, for instance, the principle has been fully demonstrated in the US, the principle has been fully demonstrated in the US, and the principle has been fully demonstrated in the US, and the principle has been fully demonstrated in the US.

The third principle of compensation, however, has been widely recognized by the American, European and Japanese governments and policymakers. For instance, in terms of the international principle of sovereignty equality, for instance, the principle has been fully demonstrated in the US, the principle has been fully demonstrated in the US, and the principle has been fully demonstrated in the US, and the principle has been fully demonstrated in the US.

The third principle of compensation, however, has been widely recognized by the American, European and Japanese governments and policymakers. For instance, in terms of the international principle of sovereignty equality, for instance, the principle has been fully demonstrated in the US, the principle has been fully demonstrated in the US, and the principle has been fully demonstrated in the US, and the principle has been fully demonstrated in the US.
Surfing makes a splash

Although relatively new to the country, surfing and related water sports have found a fan base.

As far as I know, at least in the category of jet surfing, we are close to the world’s top level.

Lin Chichun, a surfer in Sanya

"I think surfers all have a love for nature and are usually optimistic and resilient toward life."
Chen Ruihua, a surfer in Sanya

Weekly Article

All about Gen Z

By CHEN BOYIN in Hainan
chenshibugang@163.com

No. 1018202310063009

As a youth sport in China, surfing has become more popular among young sports lovers in recent years. And as the popularity of surfing continues to grow, more and more young people are participating in the sport.

And as a part of the country’s post-COVID-19 recovery, surfing sports, surfing and the beach lifestyle have become synonymous with a new, more innovative way of life.

Videos of the thrilling water sport often gain hundreds of thousands of views on social media. Let’s take a look at how surfing has become so popular.

Today, let’s explore some of the most exciting ways to enjoy surfing in China.

Firstly, let’s look at the most popular destinations for surfing in China.

Tianjin Surfing Festival

This festival takes place every year on the second Sunday of July. It is held at the Tianjin Surfing Festival Venue and is one of the largest surfing events in China. In addition to showcasing the best surfers in the country, it also features live music and other entertainment activities.

Hainan Surfing Festival

Hainan is another popular destination for surfing in China. The province has a long coastline and a warm climate, making it ideal for surfing.

Guangdong Surfing Festival

The Guangdong Surfing Festival is held in Zhanjiang, a city in southern China.

Zhejiang Surfing Festival

Zhejiang is another coastal province in China, and the province’s capital, Hangzhou, is also a popular destination for surfing.

Surfing in the City

Surfing is not just limited to coastal areas. Many cities in China also have their own surfing events and competitions.

The Future of Surfing in China

As surfing continues to gain popularity in China, it is likely to become an even more important part of the country’s culture and identity.

Conclusion

Surfing is a sport that is constantly evolving and changing. As China continues to develop and modernize, it is likely that surfing will become an even more important part of the country’s culture and identity.
A group of students from Southwestern University in Chongqing take part in a public welfare activity in the city's Weibao and Daogang villages from June 29 to July 1 during which they helped villagers remove aged photos using AI technology. Photo provided to Daily Chongqing

Z WEEKLY

Recovering rural memories

China's young students go to the countryside to improve lives as part of the sanxialing program.

Overseas Report

A trip to Japan to learn green business experience

"To there a parallel between corporate sustainability and financial profit?" This was a question I asked while meeting with representatives of the Japanese corporation, a leading food company, and I felt it interesting to know.

In recent years, the global emphasis on sustainable development and the pursuit of carbon neutrality has underscored the importance of the company's role in promoting environmental, social, and governance (ESG) matters. These three critical factors affect a company's sustainability and social impact. As the spotlight on ESG intensifies, many businesses have been influenced by its influence on the sustainability of their operations and the profitability of their projects.

The first part of all was the cultural Ekoinsin Corporation, whose focus is on food products. The company represented the importance of the company's role in promoting environmental, social, and governance (ESG) matters. These three critical factors affect a company's sustainability and social impact. As the spotlight on ESG intensifies, many businesses have been influenced by its influence on the sustainability of their operations and the profitability of their projects.

The company's sustainability initiatives are designed to help the company achieve its financial goals and contribute to a better world. The company's sustainability initiatives include reducing its carbon footprint, improving its water usage, and reducing its waste. The company's sustainability initiatives also include improving its social responsibility, such as supporting local communities and ensuring the safety and health of its employees.

The company's sustainability initiatives are designed to help the company achieve its financial goals and contribute to a better world. The company's sustainability initiatives include reducing its carbon footprint, improving its water usage, and reducing its waste. The company's sustainability initiatives also include improving its social responsibility, such as supporting local communities and ensuring the safety and health of its employees.

The company's sustainability initiatives are designed to help the company achieve its financial goals and contribute to a better world. The company's sustainability initiatives include reducing its carbon footprint, improving its water usage, and reducing its waste. The company's sustainability initiatives also include improving its social responsibility, such as supporting local communities and ensuring the safety and health of its employees.

The company's sustainability initiatives are designed to help the company achieve its financial goals and contribute to a better world. The company's sustainability initiatives include reducing its carbon footprint, improving its water usage, and reducing its waste. The company's sustainability initiatives also include improving its social responsibility, such as supporting local communities and ensuring the safety and health of its employees.

The company's sustainability initiatives are designed to help the company achieve its financial goals and contribute to a better world. The company's sustainability initiatives include reducing its carbon footprint, improving its water usage, and reducing its waste. The company's sustainability initiatives also include improving its social responsibility, such as supporting local communities and ensuring the safety and health of its employees.

The company's sustainability initiatives are designed to help the company achieve its financial goals and contribute to a better world. The company's sustainability initiatives include reducing its carbon footprint, improving its water usage, and reducing its waste. The company's sustainability initiatives also include improving its social responsibility, such as supporting local communities and ensuring the safety and health of its employees.

The company's sustainability initiatives are designed to help the company achieve its financial goals and contribute to a better world. The company's sustainability initiatives include reducing its carbon footprint, improving its water usage, and reducing its waste. The company's sustainability initiatives also include improving its social responsibility, such as supporting local communities and ensuring the safety and health of its employees.

The company's sustainability initiatives are designed to help the company achieve its financial goals and contribute to a better world. The company's sustainability initiatives include reducing its carbon footprint, improving its water usage, and reducing its waste. The company's sustainability initiatives also include improving its social responsibility, such as supporting local communities and ensuring the safety and health of its employees.

The company's sustainability initiatives are designed to help the company achieve its financial goals and contribute to a better world. The company's sustainability initiatives include reducing its carbon footprint, improving its water usage, and reducing its waste. The company's sustainability initiatives also include improving its social responsibility, such as supporting local communities and ensuring the safety and health of its employees.

The company's sustainability initiatives are designed to help the company achieve its financial goals and contribute to a better world. The company's sustainability initiatives include reducing its carbon footprint, improving its water usage, and reducing its waste. The company's sustainability initiatives also include improving its social responsibility, such as supporting local communities and ensuring the safety and health of its employees.

The company's sustainability initiatives are designed to help the company achieve its financial goals and contribute to a better world. The company's sustainability initiatives include reducing its carbon footprint, improving its water usage, and reducing its waste. The company's sustainability initiatives also include improving its social responsibility, such as supporting local communities and ensuring the safety and health of its employees.

The company's sustainability initiatives are designed to help the company achieve its financial goals and contribute to a better world. The company's sustainability initiatives include reducing its carbon footprint, improving its water usage, and reducing its waste. The company's sustainability initiatives also include improving its social responsibility, such as supporting local communities and ensuring the safety and health of its employees.

The company's sustainability initiatives are designed to help the company achieve its financial goals and contribute to a better world. The company's sustainability initiatives include reducing its carbon footprint, improving its water usage, and reducing its waste. The company's sustainability initiatives also include improving its social responsibility, such as supporting local communities and ensuring the safety and health of its employees.

The company's sustainability initiatives are designed to help the company achieve its financial goals and contribute to a better world. The company's sustainability initiatives include reducing its carbon footprint, improving its water usage, and reducing its waste. The company's sustainability initiatives also include improving its social responsibility, such as supporting local communities and ensuring the safety and health of its employees.

The company's sustainability initiatives are designed to help the company achieve its financial goals and contribute to a better world. The company's sustainability initiatives include reducing its carbon footprint, improving its water usage, and reducing its waste. The company's sustainability initiatives also include improving its social responsibility, such as supporting local communities and ensuring the safety and health of its employees.

The company's sustainability initiatives are designed to help the company achieve its financial goals and contribute to a better world. The company's sustainability initiatives include reducing its carbon footprint, improving its water usage, and reducing its waste. The company's sustainability initiatives also include improving its social responsibility, such as supporting local communities and ensuring the safety and health of its employees.

The company's sustainability initiatives are designed to help the company achieve its financial goals and contribute to a better world. The company's sustainability initiatives include reducing its carbon footprint, improving its water usage, and reducing its waste. The company's sustainability initiatives also include improving its social responsibility, such as supporting local communities and ensuring the safety and health of its employees.
Building stability in South Sudan

A Chinese diplomat shares his experiences of working at the frontier of international cooperation.

Meng Weijie report.

Ye Xiang, a Chinese diplomat,

“I am proud to say that Chinese enterprises were entrusted with the commissioning of the first modern airfield, the upgrading project of the first international airport and the first air traffic management system in South Sudan.”

Ye Xiang makes a speech about the 20th National Congress of the Communist Party of China in Juba, South Sudan, on Dec 12, 2022. PHOTO PROVIDED TO CHINA DAILY

“I am proud to say that Chinese enterprises were entrusted with the commissioning of the first modern airfield, the upgrading project of the first international airport and the first air traffic management system in South Sudan,” Ye Xiang, a Chinese diplomat, said.

Ye said that in the face of the humanitarian crisis in South Sudan, China has proposed a comprehensive approach of assistance initiatives to support the country in many aspects. For several consecutive years, emergency relief supplies from China has been provided to South Sudanese civilians, and food insecurity is a priority.

Meanwhile, China is also engaged in the construction of the Juba Teaching Hospital and the Massoti Women’s Hospital. So far, it has donated medical teams to provide assistance to the South Sudanese military.

In addition, China has actively engaged in the supervision of epidemic control after the outbreak of COVID-19 in South Sudan. South Sudan was the first country to receive loans from China under the Extraordinary China-Africa Solidarity Emergency Humanitarian Aid Project.

“China’s projects in South Sudan have received the support of the United Nations Security Council, and China has been working with the international community to promote peace agreements in South Sudan. Additionally, China was the first country to provide financial assistance to help rebuild this war-ravaged country,” Ye said.

The development and cooperation advances between China and South Sudan have created a peaceful environment enabling Chinese people to work with the country to create a prosperous future for the people in South Sudan.

Ye Xiang, a Chinese diplomat working at the frontier of international cooperation, shared his experiences of working with the South Sudanese,“China is determined to allow our youth to have a better future.” He said.

Contact the writer at mengweijie@oftc.cn.

A journey through the ‘shared countryside’

By DYLANS AUSTIN WALKER

dylans.austin@scmp.com

This week, an invitation to participate in an event co-hosted by the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) and the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) in South Sudan, which featured an expert discussion about the region’s development prospects, inspired me to explore the country’s unique geography and culture.

South Sudan, the youngest country in Africa, was established in 2011 following years of conflict and civil war. The country gained independence from Sudanese rule in 2020, but its development has been marred by political instability, natural disasters, and the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic.

The 2020 South Sudanese Human Development Report, released by the United Nations Development Programme, highlighted the challenges faced by the country, including a lack of infrastructure, inadequate healthcare facilities, and limited access to basic services.

Despite these challenges, South Sudan has made significant progress in recent years, particularly in terms of education and health. The country has invested in primary schools and hospitals, which have helped improve access to basic services for the population.

In addition, the government has implemented policy measures to promote economic growth and development, including the establishment of special economic zones and the promotion of private sector investment.

The government has also made efforts to improve the country’s infrastructure, with a focus on road construction and improvement. This has helped to reduce transportation costs and enhance connectivity within the country.

South Sudan is a landlocked country with diverse natural resources, including oil, gas, and minerals. However, the country’s development has been hindered by the lack of infrastructure and access to international markets.

Despite these challenges, South Sudan has the potential to become a significant player in the global economy, given its natural resources and strategic location.

In conclusion, South Sudan is a challenging but promising country with a bright future. With the support of international partners and the commitment of its leaders, the country can overcome its current challenges and realize its full potential.

Contact the writer at dylans.austin@scmp.com.