This morning, the UNFCC released the Synthesis Report of the Technical Dialogue of the first Global Stocktake. The synthesis report of the technical dialogue summarizes 17 key technical findings from input received by Parties, non-Party Stakeholder, experts and other sources of knowledge, such as the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC).

In response to this report, I wanted to share a statement from Dr. Sultan Al Jaber, COP28 President Designate on the news for you to include in your coverage:

"Today's global stocktake provides clear direction on how we can meet the expectations of the Paris Agreement by taking decisive action in this critical decade. To keep 1.5 within reach we must act with "ambition and urgency" to reduce emissions by 43% by 2030.

That is why the COP28 Presidency has put forward an ambitious action agenda centered around fast-tracking a just and well managed energy transition that leaves no one behind, fixing climate finance, focusing on people lives and livelihoods, and underpinning everything with full inclusivity.

I am calling on leaders from both the public and private sector to come to COP28 with real and actionable commitments to address climate change. We need to rapidly decarbonize both the supply side and demand side of the energy system at the same time. We need to triple renewable energy by 2030, commercialize other zero carbon solutions like hydrogen and scale up the energy system free of all unabated fossil fuels, while we eliminate the emissions of the energies we use today. We need to protect and enhance nature, safeguard carbon sinks and transform food systems that account for one third of emissions. And we need fundamental reform of the international financial architecture that was built for the last century.

I believe we can deliver all of this while creating sustainable economic growth for our people, but we must urgently disrupt business as usual and unite like never before to move from ambition to action and from rhetoric to real results."
