Hi [Name],

In case you are planning to cover G20 meeting outcomes on Monday, sharing the below statement that can be attributed to COP28 President-Designate Dr Sultan Al Jaber:

The G20 has made important progress and I am specifically grateful for the commitment made today to triple renewables by 2030. These 20 countries account for 80 percent of global emissions, so this declaration sends a powerful signal for climate progress. I further welcome their alignment with the COP28 agenda concerning loss & damage, adaptation finance, closing out the $100 billion pledge made over a decade ago.

I call on all countries to meet the challenge head on by committing to transformative climate action. We must meet the financial commitments of yesterday, while creating new ones for tomorrow.

Thank you and have a great weekend,
