Subject: Azerbaijan Update

Good morning,

I wanted to share an article by The Jerusalem Post titled "Israeli doctors restore sight for Azeri soldiers hurt in war with Armenia." The article describes the 150 Azeri soldiers who, after being injured in the Nagorno-Karabakh conflict, were treated by a special humanitarian delegation of Israeli medical workers. The doctors carried out procedures like eye socket restoration, eyelid surgery, and prosthetic eyes, among others. The article noted, "The delegation said it worked tirelessly to help restore sight to the wounded soldiers - or at least return to a normal routine when restoring sight was impossible."

Please let me know if you have any questions.

Best,
Mark
