Responses to Exhibit B - Questions 7,8,9*

The European Centre for a Modern Ukraine (ECFMU) engaged Mercury/Clark & Weinstock, now Mercury Public Affairs, (Mercury) in the second quarter of 2012 to represent it in promoting closer ties between Ukraine and the West – principally, the European Union (EU) and the United States. The goals included Ukraine's entry into the EU, the signing and ratification of the Association Agreement between Ukraine and the EU, and the ratification of the Deep and Comprehensive Free Trade Area agreement.

Mercury sought to facilitate opportunities for engagement on Ukrainian political developments and reforms for American elected officials, opinion leaders, the media and civil society organizations. Specifically, Mercury worked to highlight the work of the Ukrainian government to align with western democracies generally, and the EU specifically, on security, political and economic issues. To accomplish this goal, Mercury set up educational events and meetings for members of Congress and staff, think tanks and other non-governmental organizations, and the media. Speakers at these events included Ukrainian government officials and other experts on Ukraine and the EU, including Aleksander Kwaśniewski, former president of Poland, Alfred Gusenbauer, former Chancellor of Austria, and Romano Prodi, former Prime Minister of Italy. Mercury employees themselves provided similar briefings. Mercury also contacted members of the media to provide them information about Ukraine, its election and its reforms in the hope that the media would cover these topics.
