

To be attributed to an NSO Spokesman:

"NSO Group cannot comment directly on an internal Ghanaian government matter, but we understand from local reports that the sentences announced today were for internal misconduct and misappropriation of funds, and had nothing to do with any alleged deed or action by NSO Group."

Attributable to an NSO Spokesperson:

"There are significant legal and contractual constraints concerning our ability to comment on whether a particular government agency has licensed, or considered licensing NSO's products.

NSO offers its technology only to verified and authorized government agencies, and we are incredibly proud of our products' record of helping governments save lives, prevent terror and serious crime worldwide.

"We stand by previous statements that NSO Group products sold to foreign sovereigns cannot be used to conduct cybersurveillance within the United States, and no customer has ever been granted technology which enables targeting phones with US numbers.

As stated previously, Westbridge Technologies shares a parent company with NSO but is neither NSO's subsidiary nor its "arm". NSO exercises no control over Westbridge Technologies."
