

Attributable to an NSO spokesperson:

"Revisiting and recycling the conjecture of NSO's detractors, such as CitizenLab, doesn't change the overall truth of our position, which we have stated to the U.S. Federal Court in California.

"Our factual assertions have been provided as part of the official court record, and we do not have anything else to add at this time.

"We stand by our previous statements that NSO Group products cannot be used to conduct cybersurveillance within the United States, and no customer has ever been granted technology that enables targeting phones with U.S. numbers.

"NSO offers its technology only to verified and authorized government agencies, and we are incredibly proud of our products' record of helping governments save lives, prevent terror and stop serious crime worldwide."
