

Attributable to an "NSO spokesperson":

"As we said numerous times, NSO Group develops and licenses technology for the sole purposes of saving lives, and fighting terror and crime. But the company is not involved in its operation by customers, in any manner.

"The company is not privy to the identity of its law enforcement customers' targets or to the intelligence gathered by them.

"When conducting investigations on potential misuses of the technology by customers in accordance with our Human Rights Policy, then and only then, we demand that our customers provide us with information relevant to the investigation - as they are contractually required. We then review the specific information supplied to determine whether the system was used in compliance with our policies or not.

"Any other interpretation of NSO's CEO statements are misleading, out of context and have nothing to do with reality."
