

Attributable to an NSO Spokesperson:

"As NSO has now stated on several occasions, due to strict contractual and legal confidentiality requirements we cannot confirm or deny who our customers are. As we have also made clear before, we are not privy to who our authorised and verified sovereign government clients target using our technology, though they are contractually obliged to only do so against terrorists and criminals. If an investigation is warranted, NSO will conduct one following our industry-leading human rights processes.

"We remain incredibly proud of our technology's contribution in fighting terrorism and serious crime globally and our role in helping governments save lives."
