   Research and analyze Rwanda's post-genocide negative “conflict-generated diaspora” (CGD) and the impact on the conflict cycle in the Great Lakes Region, herewith referred to as the “Diaspora Effect”

   Current Methods: Empirical research, policy analysis, writing research analyses

   Potential future methods: Upon completion of research (this month) I potentially will present findings, lecture, presentations at conferences, providing guidance and advice to Rwanda from a theoretical/best practice perspective, speak to legislators, diplomats, engage in debates
8. Describe fully the activities the registrant engages in or proposes to engage in on behalf of the above foreign principal.
   1. Map the transnational networks of Rwanda’s post-genocide negative CGD, researching how virtual networks are utilized to mobilize and engage politically within the context of the “Diaspora Effect” in both the host country and within Rwanda.

If yes, describe all such political activities indicating, among other things, the relations, interests or policies to be influenced together with the means to be employed to achieve this purpose.

I am uncertain but since these issues are political in nature, I envision the possibility of providing input to State Department personnel, providing support to Embassies (US and Rwanda) regarding the findings of my research, primarily that members of the former regime are using social media to engage politically in homeland affairs while often misrepresenting themselves as genocide survivors. I also envision the possibility of speaking with U.S. government officials on the nature of the genocide in Rwanda and the nature of the pre-genocide propaganda campaign, including similarities between current diaspora-generated propaganda, and pre-genocide propaganda.
