

About Free Juan Pablo Guanipa

Juan Pablo Guanipa, former Vice President of the Venezuelan National Assembly and current leader of the Primera Justicia party, was arbitrarily detained on May 23, 2025. He was arrested by unidentified police officials allegedly linked to the Bolivarian National Police. Since then, he has been systematically denied access to legal counsel and remains incarcerated without a scheduled trial.

Juan Pablo is the highest-ranking political prisoner being held in Venezuela today.

This publication, launched by his family, serves as a resource to share news on his case, the latest legal developments, and updates on the efforts to secure his lawful release. Our goal is to bring international awareness to Venezuela's use of forced disappearances and arbitrary detentions, and to secure the lawful release of Juan Pablo.

Since Juan Pablo was detained, our family has been managing his social media accounts to raise awareness of his case. Follow along below:
