Subject: Re: Meeting with Venezuela Democratic Opposition

Thanks [REDACTED]. Sorry for the late Friday afternoon email, but per our conversation when we met, I wanted to share two recent tweets from the Vice President of Venezuela and the Venezuelan Ambassador to the UN:

- Delcy Rodriguez (Vice President of the Republic since 2018): “The people of Venezuela will seek full revenge from this gang of criminals who handed over the wealth, assets, and heritage of Venezuela to the US and Europe! CITGO is the pathetic example of what they would do if they took political power in Venezuela. DELIVERERS [those that give up our assets] WILL NOT RETURN!!! Never again.”
- Samuel Moncada (Permanent Representative of Venezuela to the United Nations since 2017): “The betrayal of Venezuelans in the US will end in CITGO’s auction to private companies on July 15. It is a theft of the empire but what worries criminals is that it happens before the elections ‘because it would help Maduro.’ This is what the enemies of Venezuela and their local agents confess.”

A link for the original tweets is here.

It is clear that the Maduro regime is using the forced sale of CITGO to attack the democratic opposition in the upcoming presidential election.

You may have seen that a bipartisan group of House members sent the WH a letter earlier this week expressing concern with the forced sale (attached in case you haven’t). A couple of Senate offices have also individually reached out to the WH. Would [REDACTED] be willing to do the same?

Thanks and enjoy the weekend.

Nathan
