Sponsored by the Government of Egypt to explore and inform international audiences on the historic, transformative progress taking place in Egypt through the stories of the people living and shaping it.

Focus: President el-Sisi at UNGA

SubscribePast Issues

New York City was marked by his speech during UNGA highlighting Egypt's deep commitment to the United Nations and how the country is fighting terror.

Additionally, the President had meetings with a number of world leaders, including Arab and African heads of state to discuss enhanced cooperation in various fields. The President also publicly met with Israeli Prime Minister Netanyahu and met with President Trump for the fourth time.

This is the fourth UNGA President el-Sisi has participated in since he came into office in 2014. Egypt is a key player in fighting terrorism on an international scale through its 30,000 soldiers' participation in UN peacekeeping missions, along with Egypt's efforts to solve Syrian, Palestinian, Yemeni and Libyan crises.

Please see key highlights from UNGA below, including an interview the President had with Fox News.
