Let's run away for the weekend

Some places make you want to linger a little longer, raise a glass to absolutely nothing, and maybe — just maybe — put your phone on silent. Denmark is full of them.

Maybe it's a cosy hideaway in a seaside hotel, where the North Sea hums its greatest hits on repeat. Or perhaps you're drawn to city lights – Copenhagen and Aarhus are full of boutique stays with rooftop views, wine bars at every turn, and a buzz that keeps the night young.

But if you're in the mood for something a little... unexpected — like sleeping in the treetops or, in a glass hut — we've got you covered. Here are 17 stays that guarantee a night to remember.

Hygge hiking & starry skies in Thy National Park

Winter in Thy National Park is a world of quiet beauty, where windswept dunes, twisted forests, and wild coastal landscapes set the scene for a truly special escape. Wrap up warm and wander along secluded trails, where the only sounds are the crunch of frosted heather and the soft murmur of Denmark's gentlest wildlife.

As night falls, the park transforms into one of Denmark's best dark sky destinations. With no city glow around, the dazzling stars take center stage. Kick off your hiking boots, burrow into your sleeping bag, and watch the stars shimmer over the North Sea. Some places warm the soul — Thy is one of them. 🌌
