THE TASK OF DEEPER CULTURAL UNDERSTANDING

Twenty years ago, in October 1998, I delivered a speech to the House of Commons...

Inclusion is the key to the task of deeper cultural understanding...

It is not only the language of the human for our cultural and spiritual identity...

Culture, along with commerce and entertainment...

It is not only the language of the human for our cultural and spiritual identity...

It is not only the language of the human for our cultural and spiritual identity...

A lack of understanding about the religious faith is a critical element of the cause of the Deep Cultural Divide...

"What has taken place, I suspect, is a deeper understanding of what the many, many underlying aspects of our planet really believe, in so far as they are concerned by mass communication, the art, culture, and above all, religion of other human cultures."

It is not only the language of the human for our cultural and spiritual identity...

Taiwan Matters. So does international recognition.

The Asian region is the focal point for many major policy issues under consideration by the United Nations. Central to these issues is Taiwan.

Now is the time for the UN to recognize Taiwan - the 11th largest economy in the world - as a critical member of the world community.

With over 70,000 members, including business leaders from all sectors, the Taiwan Civil Government (TCG) seeks a diplomatically recognized Taiwan with an even stronger relationship with the United States. As politics and foreign policy in Asia heat up, the world has a strong partner in the TCG and Taiwan. And, it matters.

TAIWAN'S ECONOMY AND STATURE

US's tenth largest goods trading partner with $5.3 billion in total goods traded.

11th largest economy in the world.

Trade between Taiwan and the EU-28 reached US$ 43.6 billion in 2016, an increase by 5.0% in comparison to 2015.

Trade in services with Taiwan totaled $19.4 billion in 2016.

INSIGHT BY TAIWAN CIVIL GOVERNMENT China, US in Soft Power Battle for Taiwan

By Neil Hare

It's becoming increasingly clear that the wars of the 21st Century are being fought and won with soft power and not military might. Cyber-attacks, social media, "fake news," stealing intellectual property and human capital, investment, and political meddling are being employed with far greater frequency and success than bombing raids and special forces attacks. There's no better example than the battle over Taiwan.

Since 1979 when the US opened relations with China and instituted the "One China" policy and the policy of "strategic ambiguity," the Taiwanese have lingered in political purgatory while two of the world's superpowers have been at stalemate. China strongly believes that Taiwan is part of its own territory. And while the United States has not claimed Taiwan, it has propped it up militarily and economically, and pledged to defend it against attacks with the passage of the Taiwan Relations Act of 1979.

The world community, manifested through the United Nations, has obviously sided with China, first by expelling the Republic of China in exile under Chiang Kai-shek from its membership, and then excluding it from observer status and from participating in sub groups like the World Health Organization.

Recently, China raised the stakes in the battle for Taiwan. As example, China lashed out at the GAP and forced it to change a tee shirt it released with a map of China on it that did not include Taiwan. Even more egregious, China recently forced the world's major airlines to delete any reference to Taiwan in their travel schedules, but rather, refer to its capital as Taipei, China. So far over 40 carriers have capitulated. China has also coerced the few countries who have recognized Taiwan to cease doing so, most recently Panama and the Dominican Republic. China allegedly offered the DR $3.1 billion in loans and investments to switch allegiance from Taiwan to China.

...ng talent, offering high paying jobs, while interjecting propa... into social media channels. China also invests heavily in Taiwan, ...sts the 11th largest economy in the world.

The US government has retained... opening a new $250 million American Institute of Taiwan (AIT) facility in June, which acts as the US's quasi embassy. There is also talk of... putting US military personnel on the ground in Taiwan for the first time in decades. Congress also passed the Taiwan Travel Act this spring, facilitating travel between senior leaders of the two countries, and has authorized $1.4 billion in arms sales to Taiwan.

One strongly pro-American group in Taiwan has been feeling the political pain of its convictions. The Taiwan Civil Government (TCG) believes that after the defeat of the Japanese in World War II and under the San Francisco Peace Treaty of 1952, the US has legal claim to Taiwan and continues to be the "principal occupying power." They would like to see the US regain control of Taiwan as a bridge to the Taiwanese people determining their own future.

This pro-US stance landed the leaders of the TCG, Dr. Roger Lin and his wife Julian Lin, in prison. Despite more than a decade of very public and peaceful protest, two lawsuits in the United States, and a robust global public relations effort, the Taiwan Authority accused the Lin's of fraud. The Lin's were recently detained for five months in prison, incommunicado and without any bail hearing. And, while they were released on bail temporarily, they were detained a second time and forced to pay additional bail for their release. They now live in constant fear.

Just as the Taiwanese people have been denied their human right, the Lin's are being bullied and coerced for exercising their right to free speech and the legal rights we would deem fair in the US. In the wake of China's efforts to suppress corporate references towards Taiwan and influence diplomatic rejection of Taiwan, it is no surprise that the Lin's pro-US position is now being cloistered as well.

The United States must reconsider their approach to Taiwan by formally recognizing it. In addition, the US should stand up for the Lin's and tell the Taiwanese Authority to drop all charges against them. The future and foundation of Taiwan depends on it.
