

From: Sudafi Henry <sudafi.henry@thegroupdc.com>
Sent: Thursday, March 26, 2026 3:06 PM
To: Ashley.Jones@mail.house.gov <ashley.jones@mail.house.gov>; max.price@mail.house.gov <max.price@mail.house.gov>
Subject: WSJ: "The U.A.E. Stands Up to Iran"

Ashley & Max,

Good afternoon. I hope this message finds you well.

I am reaching out on behalf of the Embassy of the United Arab Emirates (U.A.E.) to share today's WSJ op-ed authored by U.A.E.'s Ambassador Yousef Al Otaiba. The op-ed represents a clear articulation of U.A.E.'s current posture as it relates to the ongoing regional conflict. If you have any questions or are interested in more information, please do not hesitate to let me know.

Best,

Sudafi

The U.A.E. Stands Up to Iran

This war requires a conclusive outcome—one that addresses Tehran's full range of threats.

By Yousef Al Otaiba, U.A.E. ambassador to the U.S.

The past 3½ weeks of war have confirmed what we have known for nearly 50 years—Iran's revolution is a threat to global security and economic stability. We can't let Iran hold the U.S., the United Arab Emirates and the global economy hostage. A simple cease-fire isn't enough. We need a conclusive outcome that addresses Iran's full range of threats: nuclear capabilities, missiles, drones, terror proxies and blockades of international sea lanes. Forty miles away, the U.A.E. stands on the front line of this conflict. Iran has launched more than 2,180 missiles and drones at the Emirates, far more than at any other country. We have one of the world's most effective defense shields and intercept more than 95% of these attacks.

Beyond our borders, Iran is striking airports, seaports and energy infrastructure. It is blockading energy shipments and supplies for fertilizer and manufacturing and threatening theme parks and cultural sites worldwide through its proxy network.

We have hardened our infrastructure and built an oil pipeline to bypass the Strait of Hormuz. But the region needs a coordinated effort to reopen this vital passage and restore energy supplies to global consumers.

This isn't a war we wanted. Until hours before the first strike, Emirati officials undertook intensive diplomatic efforts from Tehran to Washington. We made clear to the Iranians that in the event of a war, U.A.E. territory and airspace wouldn't be used for strikes on Iran. We knew we would be Iran's first choice of targets. Not only because we are so near, but because we are so different. The U.A.E. is a modern, progressive, prosperous Muslim society that delivers for its people. We empower women and welcome all faiths. The U.A.E. is the argument Iran can't win, the idea it can't accept.

The U.A.E. will endure. We will absorb this shock and accelerate economic diversification with new initiatives in artificial intelligence, renewable energy, life sciences and tourism. This includes the world's largest data center complex, a new Guggenheim Museum and the Middle East's first Disney theme park.

S&P Global Ratings reaffirmed the Emirates' AA/A-1+ sovereign credit rating, citing our fiscal depth, diversified growth engines and proven ability to protect investments, even in crisis. Our airlines, Etihad and Emirates, are restoring schedules and resuming flights to the U.S.

We are equally committed to our investment plans in the U.S. Our $1.4 trillion commitment is firm. The stronger our economic ties to America, the stronger both nations become—and the clearer our message to those who seek to destabilize the region.

Iran's nuclear capabilities have been degraded. Its proxies have been weakened. More needs to be done to remove the missile and drone threats. And we are ready to join an international initiative to reopen the strait and keep it open.

We aren't asking the U.S. to carry the full burden. We are defending our people, protecting regional stability and global prosperity, and demonstrating that real alliances are built on cooperation and contribution, not dependency.

We want Iran as a normal neighbor. It can be reclusive and even unwelcoming, but it can't attack its neighbors, blockade international waters, or export extremism. Building a fence around the problem and wishing it goes away isn't the answer. It would simply defer the next crisis.

"These materials are being distributed by theGROUP on behalf of the Embassy of the United Arab Emirates. More information is on file with the Department of Justice, Washington, D.C."

Sudafi S. Henry, Managing Partner
theGROUP
1730 Pennsylvania Avenue NW, Suite 500
Washington, DC 20006
(202) 386-7282 ext. 114
www.thegroupdc.com

From: Sudafi Henry <sudafi.henry@thegroupdc.com>
Sent: Thursday, March 26, 2026 3:03 PM
To: brooke.scannell@mail.house.gov <brooke.scannell@mail.house.gov>; ian.staples@mail.house.gov <ian.staples@mail.house.gov>
Subject: WSJ: "The U.A.E. Stands Up to Iran"

Brooke and Ian,

Good afternoon. I hope this message finds you well.

I am reaching out on behalf of the Embassy of the United Arab Emirates (U.A.E.) to share today's WSJ op-ed authored by U.A.E.'s Ambassador Yousef Al Otaiba. The op-ed represents a clear articulation of U.A.E.'s current posture as it relates to the ongoing regional conflict. If you have any questions or are interested in more information, please do not hesitate to let me know.

Best,

Sudafi

The U.A.E. Stands Up to Iran

This war requires a conclusive outcome—one that addresses Tehran's full range of threats.

By Yousef Al Otaiba, U.A.E. ambassador to the U.S.

The past 3½ weeks of war have confirmed what we have known for nearly 50 years—Iran's revolution is a threat to global security and economic stability. We can't let Iran hold the U.S., the United Arab Emirates and the global economy hostage. A simple cease-fire isn't enough. We need a conclusive outcome that addresses Iran's full range of threats: nuclear capabilities, missiles, drones, terror proxies and blockades of international sea lanes. Forty miles away, the U.A.E. stands on the front line of this conflict. Iran has launched more than 2,180 missiles and drones at the Emirates, far more than at any other country. We have one of the world's most effective defense shields and intercept more than 95% of these attacks.

Beyond our borders, Iran is striking airports, seaports and energy infrastructure. It is blockading energy shipments and supplies for fertilizer and manufacturing and threatening theme parks and cultural sites worldwide through its proxy network.

We have hardened our infrastructure and built an oil pipeline to bypass the Strait of Hormuz. But the region needs a coordinated effort to reopen this vital passage and restore energy supplies to global consumers.

This isn't a war we wanted. Until hours before the first strike, Emirati officials undertook intensive diplomatic efforts from Tehran to Washington. We made clear to the Iranians that in the event of a war, U.A.E. territory and airspace wouldn't be used for strikes on Iran. We knew we would be Iran's first choice of targets. Not only because we are so near, but because we are so different. The U.A.E. is a modern, progressive, prosperous Muslim society that delivers for its people. We empower women and welcome all faiths. The U.A.E. is the argument Iran can't win, the idea it can't accept.

The U.A.E. will endure. We will absorb this shock and accelerate economic diversification with new initiatives in artificial intelligence, renewable energy, life sciences and tourism. This includes the world's largest data center complex, a new Guggenheim Museum and the Middle East's first Disney theme park.

S&P Global Ratings reaffirmed the Emirates' AA/A-1+ sovereign credit rating, citing our fiscal depth, diversified growth engines and proven ability to protect investments, even in crisis. Our airlines, Etihad and Emirates, are restoring schedules and resuming flights to the U.S.

We are equally committed to our investment plans in the U.S. Our $1.4 trillion commitment is firm. The stronger our economic ties to America, the stronger both nations become—and the clearer our message to those who seek to destabilize the region.

Iran's nuclear capabilities have been degraded. Its proxies have been weakened. More needs to be done to remove the missile and drone threats. And we are ready to join an international initiative to reopen the strait and keep it open.

We aren't asking the U.S. to carry the full burden. We are defending our people, protecting regional stability and global prosperity, and demonstrating that real alliances are built on cooperation and contribution, not dependency.

We want Iran as a normal neighbor. It can be reclusive and even unwelcoming, but it can't attack its neighbors, blockade international waters, or export extremism. Building a fence around the problem and wishing it goes away isn't the answer. It would simply defer the next crisis.

"These materials are being distributed by theGROUP on behalf of the Embassy of the United Arab Emirates. More information is on file with the Department of Justice, Washington, D.C."

Sudafi S. Henry, Managing Partner
theGROUP
1730 Pennsylvania Avenue NW, Suite 500
Washington, DC 20006
(202) 386-7282 ext. 114
www.thegroupdc.com

From: Sudafi Henry <sudafi.henry@thegroupdc.com>
Sent: Thursday, March 26, 2026 2:36 PM
To: victoria.rivas@mail.house.gov <victoria.rivas@mail.house.gov>; becky.cornell@mail.house.gov <becky.cornell@mail.house.gov>; maryana.sawaged@mail.house.gov <maryana.sawaged@mail.house.gov>
Subject: WSJ: "The U.A.E. Stands Up to Iran"

Becky, Victoria, and Maryana:

Good afternoon. I hope this message finds you well.

I am reaching out on behalf of the Embassy of the United Arab Emirates (U.A.E.) to share today's WSJ op-ed authored by U.A.E.'s Ambassador Yousef Al Otaiba. The op-ed represents a clear articulation of U.A.E.'s current posture as it relates to the ongoing regional conflict. If you have any questions or are interested in more information, please do not hesitate to let me know.

Best,

Sudafi

The U.A.E. Stands Up to Iran

This war requires a conclusive outcome—one that addresses Tehran's full range of threats.

By Yousef Al Otaiba, U.A.E. ambassador to the U.S.

The past 3½ weeks of war have confirmed what we have known for nearly 50 years—Iran's revolution is a threat to global security and economic stability. We can't let Iran hold the U.S., the United Arab Emirates and the global economy hostage. A simple cease-fire isn't enough. We need a conclusive outcome that addresses Iran's full range of threats: nuclear capabilities, missiles, drones, terror proxies and blockades of international sea lanes. Forty miles away, the U.A.E. stands on the front line of this conflict. Iran has launched more than 2,180 missiles and drones at the Emirates, far more than at any other country. We have one of the world's most effective defense shields and intercept more than 95% of these attacks.

Beyond our borders, Iran is striking airports, seaports and energy infrastructure. It is blockading energy shipments and supplies for fertilizer and manufacturing and threatening theme parks and cultural sites worldwide through its proxy network. We have hardened our infrastructure and built an oil pipeline to bypass the Strait of Hormuz. But the region needs a coordinated effort to reopen this vital passage and restore energy supplies to global consumers. This isn't a war we wanted. Until hours before the first strike, Emirati officials undertook intensive diplomatic efforts from Tehran to Washington. We made clear to the Iranians that in the event of a war, U.A.E. territory and airspace wouldn't be used for strikes on Iran. We knew we would be Iran's first choice of targets. Not only because we are so near, but because we are so different. The U.A.E. is a modern, progressive, prosperous Muslim society that delivers for its people. We empower women and welcome all faiths. The U.A.E. is the argument Iran can't win, the idea it can't accept.

The U.A.E. will endure. We will absorb this shock and accelerate economic diversification with new initiatives in artificial intelligence, renewable energy, life sciences and tourism. This includes the world's largest data center complex, a new Guggenheim Museum and the Middle East's first Disney theme park.

S&P Global Ratings reaffirmed the Emirates' AA/A-1+ sovereign credit rating, citing our fiscal depth, diversified growth engines and proven ability to protect investments, even in crisis. Our airlines, Etihad and Emirates, are restoring schedules and resuming flights to the U.S.

We are equally committed to our investment plans in the U.S. Our $1.4 trillion commitment is firm. The stronger our economic ties to America, the stronger both nations become—and the clearer our message to those who seek to destabilize the region.

Iran's nuclear capabilities have been degraded. Its proxies have been weakened. More needs to be done to remove the missile and drone threats. And we are ready to join an international initiative to reopen the strait and keep it open.

We aren't asking the U.S. to carry the full burden. We are defending our people, protecting regional stability and global prosperity, and demonstrating that real alliances are built on cooperation and contribution, not dependency.

We want Iran as a normal neighbor. It can be reclusive and even unwelcoming, but it can't attack its neighbors, blockade international waters, or export extremism. Building a fence around the problem and wishing it goes away isn't the answer. It would simply defer the next crisis.

"These materials are being distributed by theGROUP on behalf of the Embassy of the United Arab Emirates. More information is on file with the Department of Justice, Washington, D.C."

Sudafi S. Henry, Managing Partner
theGROUP
1730 Pennsylvania Avenue NW, Suite 500
Washington, DC 20006
(202) 386-7282 ext. 114
www.thegroupdc.com

From: Sudafi Henry <sudafi.henry@thegroupdc.com>
Sent: Thursday, March 26, 2026 2:34 PM
To: eric.delaney@mail.house.gov <eric.delaney@mail.house.gov>; sonali.desai@mail.house.gov <sonali.desai@mail.house.gov>; heather.painter@mail.house.gov <heather.painter@mail.house.gov>
Subject: WSJ: "The U.A.E. Stands Up to Iran"

Sonali, Eric, and Heather:

Good afternoon. I hope this message finds you well.

I am reaching out on behalf of the Embassy of the United Arab Emirates (U.A.E.) to share today's WSJ op-ed authored by U.A.E.'s Ambassador Yousef Al Otaiba. The op-ed represents a clear articulation of U.A.E.'s current posture as it relates to the ongoing regional conflict. If you have any questions or are interested in more information, please do not hesitate to let me know.

Best,

Sudafi

The U.A.E. Stands Up to Iran

This war requires a conclusive outcome—one that addresses Tehran's full range of threats.

By Yousef Al Otaiba, U.A.E. ambassador to the U.S.

The past 3½ weeks of war have confirmed what we have known for nearly 50 years—Iran's revolution is a threat to global security and economic stability. We can't let Iran hold the U.S., the United Arab Emirates and the global economy hostage. A simple cease-fire isn't enough. We need a conclusive outcome that addresses Iran's full range of threats: nuclear capabilities, missiles, drones, terror proxies and blockades of international sea lanes. Forty miles away, the U.A.E. stands on the front line of this conflict. Iran has launched more than 2,180 missiles and drones at the Emirates, far more than at any other country. We have one of the world's most effective defense shields and intercept more than 95% of these attacks.

Beyond our borders, Iran is striking airports, seaports and energy infrastructure. It is blockading energy shipments and supplies for fertilizer and manufacturing and threatening theme parks and cultural sites worldwide through its proxy network.

We have hardened our infrastructure and built an oil pipeline to bypass the Strait of Hormuz. But the region needs a coordinated effort to reopen this vital passage and restore energy supplies to global consumers.

This isn't a war we wanted. Until hours before the first strike, Emirati officials undertook intensive diplomatic efforts from Tehran to Washington. We made clear to the Iranians that in the event of a war, U.A.E. territory and airspace wouldn't be used for strikes on Iran. We knew we would be Iran's first choice of targets. Not only because we are so near, but because we are so different. The U.A.E. is a modern, progressive, prosperous Muslim society that delivers for its people. We empower women and welcome all faiths. The U.A.E. is the argument Iran can't win, the idea it can't accept.

The U.A.E. will endure. We will absorb this shock and accelerate economic diversification with new initiatives in artificial intelligence, renewable energy, life sciences and tourism. This includes the world's largest data center complex, a new Guggenheim Museum and the Middle East's first Disney theme park.

S&P Global Ratings reaffirmed the Emirates' AA/A-1+ sovereign credit rating, citing our fiscal depth, diversified growth engines and proven ability to protect investments, even in crisis. Our airlines, Etihad and Emirates, are restoring schedules and resuming flights to the U.S.

We are equally committed to our investment plans in the U.S. Our $1.4 trillion commitment is firm. The stronger our economic ties to America, the stronger both nations become—and the clearer our message to those who seek to destabilize the region.

Iran's nuclear capabilities have been degraded. Its proxies have been weakened. More needs to be done to remove the missile and drone threats. And we are ready to join an international initiative to reopen the strait and keep it open.

We aren't asking the U.S. to carry the full burden. We are defending our people, protecting regional stability and global prosperity, and demonstrating that real alliances are built on cooperation and contribution, not dependency.

We want Iran as a normal neighbor. It can be reclusive and even unwelcoming, but it can't attack its neighbors, blockade international waters, or export extremism. Building a fence around the problem and wishing it goes away isn't the answer. It would simply defer the next crisis.

"These materials are being distributed by theGROUP on behalf of the Embassy of the United Arab Emirates. More information is on file with the Department of Justice, Washington, D.C."

Sudafi S. Henry, Managing Partner
theGROUP
1730 Pennsylvania Avenue NW, Suite 500
Washington, DC 20006
(202) 386-7282 ext. 114
www.thegroupdc.com

From: Sudafi Henry <sudafi.henry@thegroupdc.com>
Sent: Thursday, March 26, 2026 2:32 PM
To: Cox, Christopher <christopher.cox@mail.house.gov>; Thanawala, Nisha <nisha.thanawala@mail.house.gov>; steven.blattner@mail.house.gov
<steven.blattner@mail.house.gov>
Cc: Vincent.Evans@mail.house.gov <Vincent.Evans@mail.house.gov>;
Morgan.Bodenarain@mail.house.gov <Morgan.Bodenarain@mail.house.gov>
Subject: WSJ: "The U.A.E. Stands Up to Iran"

Chris, Steven & Nisha:

Good afternoon. I hope this message finds you well.

I am reaching out on behalf of the Embassy of the United Arab Emirates (U.A.E.) to share today's WSJ op-ed authored by U.A.E.'s Ambassador Yousef Al Otaiba. The op-ed represents a clear articulation of U.A.E.'s current posture as it relates to the ongoing regional conflict. If you have any questions or are interested in more information, please do not hesitate to let me know.

Best,

Sudafi

The U.A.E. Stands Up to Iran

This war requires a conclusive outcome—one that addresses Tehran's full range of threats.

By Yousef Al Otaiba, U.A.E. ambassador to the U.S.

The past 3½ weeks of war have confirmed what we have known for nearly 50 years—Iran's revolution is a threat to global security and economic stability. We can't let Iran hold the U.S., the United Arab Emirates and the global economy hostage. A simple cease-fire isn't enough. We need a conclusive outcome that addresses Iran's full range of threats: nuclear capabilities, missiles, drones, terror proxies and blockades of international sea lanes. Forty miles away, the U.A.E. stands on the front line of this conflict. Iran has launched more than 2,180 missiles and drones at the Emirates, far more than at any other country. We have one of the world's most effective defense shields and intercept more than 95% of these attacks.

Beyond our borders, Iran is striking airports, seaports and energy infrastructure. It is blockading energy shipments and supplies for fertilizer and manufacturing and threatening theme parks and cultural sites worldwide through its proxy network.

We have hardened our infrastructure and built an oil pipeline to bypass the Strait of Hormuz. But the region needs a coordinated effort to reopen this vital passage and restore energy supplies to global consumers.

This isn't a war we wanted. Until hours before the first strike, Emirati officials undertook intensive diplomatic efforts from Tehran to Washington. We made clear to the Iranians that in the event of a war, U.A.E. territory and airspace wouldn't be used for strikes on Iran. We knew we would be Iran's first choice of targets. Not only because we are so near, but because we are so different. The U.A.E. is a modern, progressive, prosperous Muslim society that delivers for its people. We empower women and welcome all faiths. The U.A.E. is the argument Iran can't win, the idea it can't accept.

The U.A.E. will endure. We will absorb this shock and accelerate economic diversification with new initiatives in artificial intelligence, renewable energy, life sciences and tourism. This includes the world's largest data center complex, a new Guggenheim Museum and the Middle East's first Disney theme park.

S&P Global Ratings reaffirmed the Emirates' AA/A-1+ sovereign credit rating, citing our fiscal depth, diversified growth engines and proven ability to protect investments, even in crisis. Our airlines, Etihad and Emirates, are restoring schedules and resuming flights to the U.S.

We are equally committed to our investment plans in the U.S. Our $1.4 trillion commitment is firm. The stronger our economic ties to America, the stronger both nations become—and the clearer our message to those who seek to destabilize the region.

Iran's nuclear capabilities have been degraded. Its proxies have been weakened. More needs to be done to remove the missile and drone threats. And we are ready to join an international initiative to reopen the strait and keep it open.

We aren't asking the U.S. to carry the full burden. We are defending our people, protecting regional stability and global prosperity, and demonstrating that real alliances are built on cooperation and contribution, not dependency.

We want Iran as a normal neighbor. It can be reclusive and even unwelcoming, but it can't attack its neighbors, blockade international waters, or export extremism. Building a fence around the problem and wishing it goes away isn't the answer. It would simply defer the next crisis.

"These materials are being distributed by theGROUP on behalf of the Embassy of the United Arab Emirates. More information is on file with the Department of Justice, Washington, D.C."

Sudafi S. Henry, Managing Partner
theGROUP
1730 Pennsylvania Avenue NW, Suite 500
Washington, DC 20006
(202) 386-7282 ext. 114
www.thegroupdc.com

From: Sudafi Henry <sudafi.henry@thegroupdc.com>
Sent: Thursday, March 26, 2026 2:27 PM
To: edward.hamb@mail.house.gov <edward.hamb@mail.house.gov>; dpp@mail.house.gov <dpp@mail.house.gov>; james.gomez@mail.house.gov <james.gomez@mail.house.gov>
Subject: WSJ: "The U.A.E. Stands Up to Iran"

Ed, Deepa, and James:

Good afternoon. I hope this message finds you well.

I am reaching out on behalf of the Embassy of the United Arab Emirates (U.A.E.) to share today's WSJ op-ed authored by U.A.E.'s Ambassador Yousef Al Otaiba. The op-ed represents a clear articulation of U.A.E.'s current posture as it relates to the ongoing regional conflict. If you have any questions or are interested in more information, please do not hesitate to let me know.

Best,

Sudafi

The U.A.E. Stands Up to Iran

This war requires a conclusive outcome—one that addresses Tehran's full range of threats.

By Yousef Al Otaiba, U.A.E. ambassador to the U.S.

The past 3½ weeks of war have confirmed what we have known for nearly 50 years—Iran's revolution is a threat to global security and economic stability. We can't let Iran hold the U.S., the United Arab Emirates and the global economy hostage. A simple cease-fire isn't enough. We need a conclusive outcome that addresses Iran's full range of threats: nuclear capabilities, missiles, drones, terror proxies and blockades of international sea lanes. Forty miles away, the U.A.E. stands on the front line of this conflict. Iran has launched more than 2,180 missiles and drones at the Emirates, far more than at any other country. We have one of the world's most effective defense shields and intercept more than 95% of these attacks.

Beyond our borders, Iran is striking airports, seaports and energy infrastructure. It is blockading energy shipments and supplies for fertilizer and manufacturing and threatening theme parks and cultural sites worldwide through its proxy network.

We have hardened our infrastructure and built an oil pipeline to bypass the Strait of Hormuz. But the region needs a coordinated effort to reopen this vital passage and restore energy supplies to global consumers.

This isn't a war we wanted. Until hours before the first strike, Emirati officials undertook intensive diplomatic efforts from Tehran to Washington. We made clear to the Iranians that in the event of a war, U.A.E. territory and airspace wouldn't be used for strikes on Iran. We knew we would be Iran's first choice of targets. Not only because we are so near, but because we are so different. The U.A.E. is a modern, progressive, prosperous Muslim society that delivers for its people. We empower women and welcome all faiths. The U.A.E. is the argument Iran can't win, the idea it can't accept.

The U.A.E. will endure. We will absorb this shock and accelerate economic diversification with new initiatives in artificial intelligence, renewable energy, life sciences and tourism. This includes the world's largest data center complex, a new Guggenheim Museum and the Middle East's first Disney theme park.

S&P Global Ratings reaffirmed the Emirates' AA/A-1+ sovereign credit rating, citing our fiscal depth, diversified growth engines and proven ability to protect investments, even in crisis. Our airlines, Etihad and Emirates, are restoring schedules and resuming flights to the U.S.

We are equally committed to our investment plans in the U.S. Our $1.4 trillion commitment is firm. The stronger our economic ties to America, the stronger both nations become—and the clearer our message to those who seek to destabilize the region.

Iran's nuclear capabilities have been degraded. Its proxies have been weakened. More needs to be done to remove the missile and drone threats. And we are ready to join an international initiative to reopen the strait and keep it open.

We aren't asking the U.S. to carry the full burden. We are defending our people, protecting regional stability and global prosperity, and demonstrating that real alliances are built on cooperation and contribution, not dependency.

We want Iran as a normal neighbor. It can be reclusive and even unwelcoming, but it can't attack its neighbors, blockade international waters, or export extremism. Building a fence around the problem and wishing it goes away isn't the answer. It would simply defer the next crisis.

"These materials are being distributed by theGROUP on behalf of the Embassy of the United Arab Emirates. More information is on file with the Department of Justice, Washington, D.C."

Sudafi S. Henry, Managing Partner
theGROUP
1730 Pennsylvania Avenue NW, Suite 500
Washington, DC 20006
(202) 386-7282 ext. 114
www.thegroupdc.com

From: Sudafi Henry <sudafi.henry@thegroupdc.com>
Sent: Thursday, March 26, 2026 2:25 PM
To: Gandhi, Sajit <sajit.gandhi@mail.house.gov>; kayla.williams@mail.house.gov <kayla.williams@mail.house.gov>
Subject: WSJ: "The U.A.E. Stands Up to Iran"

Sajit & Kayla:

Good afternoon. I hope this message finds you well.

I am reaching out on behalf of the Embassy of the United Arab Emirates (U.A.E.) to share today's WSJ op-ed authored by U.A.E.'s Ambassador Yousef Al Otaiba. The op-ed represents a clear articulation of U.A.E.'s current posture as it relates to the ongoing regional conflict. If you have any questions or are interested in more information, please do not hesitate to let me know.

Best,

Sudafi

The U.A.E. Stands Up to Iran

This war requires a conclusive outcome—one that addresses Tehran's full range of threats.

By Yousef Al Otaiba, U.A.E. ambassador to the U.S.

The past 3½ weeks of war have confirmed what we have known for nearly 50 years—Iran's revolution is a threat to global security and economic stability. We can't let Iran hold the U.S., the United Arab Emirates and the global economy hostage. A simple cease-fire isn't enough. We need a conclusive outcome that addresses Iran's full range of threats: nuclear capabilities, missiles, drones, terror proxies and blockades of international sea lanes. Forty miles away, the U.A.E. stands on the front line of this conflict. Iran has launched more than 2,180 missiles and drones at the Emirates, far more than at any other country. We have one of the world's most effective defense shields and intercept more than 95% of these attacks.

Beyond our borders, Iran is striking airports, seaports and energy infrastructure. It is blockading energy shipments and supplies for fertilizer and manufacturing and threatening theme parks and cultural sites worldwide through its proxy network.

We have hardened our infrastructure and built an oil pipeline to bypass the Strait of Hormuz. But the region needs a coordinated effort to reopen this vital passage and restore energy supplies to global consumers.

This isn't a war we wanted. Until hours before the first strike, Emirati officials undertook intensive diplomatic efforts from Tehran to Washington. We made clear to the Iranians that in the event of a war, U.A.E. territory and airspace wouldn't be used for strikes on Iran. We knew we would be Iran's first choice of targets. Not only because we are so near, but because we are so different. The U.A.E. is a modern, progressive, prosperous Muslim society that delivers for its people. We empower women and welcome all faiths. The U.A.E. is the argument Iran can't win, the idea it can't accept.

The U.A.E. will endure. We will absorb this shock and accelerate economic diversification with new initiatives in artificial intelligence, renewable energy, life sciences and tourism. This includes the world's largest data center complex, a new Guggenheim Museum and the Middle East's first Disney theme park.

S&P Global Ratings reaffirmed the Emirates' AA/A-1+ sovereign credit rating, citing our fiscal depth, diversified growth engines and proven ability to protect investments, even in crisis. Our airlines, Etihad and Emirates, are restoring schedules and resuming flights to the U.S.

We are equally committed to our investment plans in the U.S. Our $1.4 trillion commitment is firm. The stronger our economic ties to America, the stronger both nations become—and the clearer our message to those who seek to destabilize the region.

Iran's nuclear capabilities have been degraded. Its proxies have been weakened. More needs to be done to remove the missile and drone threats. And we are ready to join an international initiative to reopen the strait and keep it open.

We aren't asking the U.S. to carry the full burden. We are defending our people, protecting regional stability and global prosperity, and demonstrating that real alliances are built on cooperation and contribution, not dependency.

We want Iran as a normal neighbor. It can be reclusive and even unwelcoming, but it can't attack its neighbors, blockade international waters, or export extremism. Building a fence around the problem and wishing it goes away isn't the answer. It would simply defer the next crisis.

"These materials are being distributed by theGROUP on behalf of the Embassy of the United Arab Emirates. More information is on file with the Department of Justice, Washington, D.C."

Sudafi S. Henry, Managing Partner
theGROUP
1730 Pennsylvania Avenue NW, Suite 500
Washington, DC 20006
(202) 386-7282 ext. 114
www.thegroupdc.com

From: Sudafi Henry <sudafi.henry@thegroupdc.com>
Sent: Thursday, March 26, 2026 2:24 PM
To: Tasia.Jackson@mail.house.gov <Tasia.Jackson@mail.house.gov>; Parker, Wyndee <wyndee.parker@mail.house.gov>; zoe.oreck@mail.house.gov <zoe.oreck@mail.house.gov>
Subject: WSJ: "The U.A.E. Stands Up to Iran"

Tasia, Wyndee, and Zoe:

Good afternoon. I hope this message finds you well.

I am reaching out on behalf of the Embassy of the United Arab Emirates (U.A.E.) to share today's WSJ op-ed authored by U.A.E.'s Ambassador Yousef Al Otaiba. The op-ed represents a clear articulation of U.A.E.'s current posture as it relates to the ongoing regional conflict. If you have any questions or are interested in more information, please do not hesitate to let me know.

Best,

Sudafi

The U.A.E. Stands Up to Iran

This war requires a conclusive outcome—one that addresses Tehran's full range of threats.

By Yousef Al Otaiba, U.A.E. ambassador to the U.S.

The past 3½ weeks of war have confirmed what we have known for nearly 50 years—Iran's revolution is a threat to global security and economic stability. We can't let Iran hold the U.S., the United Arab Emirates and the global economy hostage. A simple cease-fire isn't enough. We need a conclusive outcome that addresses Iran's full range of threats: nuclear capabilities, missiles, drones, terror proxies and blockades of international sea lanes. Forty miles away, the U.A.E. stands on the front line of this conflict. Iran has launched more than 2,180 missiles and drones at the Emirates, far more than at any other country. We have one of the world's most effective defense shields and intercept more than 95% of these attacks.

Beyond our borders, Iran is striking airports, seaports and energy infrastructure. It is blockading energy shipments and supplies for fertilizer and manufacturing and threatening theme parks and cultural sites worldwide through its proxy network.

We have hardened our infrastructure and built an oil pipeline to bypass the Strait of Hormuz. But the region needs a coordinated effort to reopen this vital passage and restore energy supplies to global consumers.

This isn't a war we wanted. Until hours before the first strike, Emirati officials undertook intensive diplomatic efforts from Tehran to Washington. We made clear to the Iranians that in the event of a war, U.A.E. territory and airspace wouldn't be used for strikes on Iran. We knew we would be Iran's first choice of targets. Not only because we are so near, but because we are so different. The U.A.E. is a modern, progressive, prosperous Muslim society that delivers for its people. We empower women and welcome all faiths. The U.A.E. is the argument Iran can't win, the idea it can't accept.

The U.A.E. will endure. We will absorb this shock and accelerate economic diversification with new initiatives in artificial intelligence, renewable energy, life sciences and tourism. This includes the world's largest data center complex, a new Guggenheim Museum and the Middle East's first Disney theme park.

S&P Global Ratings reaffirmed the Emirates' AA/A-1+ sovereign credit rating, citing our fiscal depth, diversified growth engines and proven ability to protect investments, even in crisis. Our airlines, Etihad and Emirates, are restoring schedules and resuming flights to the U.S.

We are equally committed to our investment plans in the U.S. Our $1.4 trillion commitment is firm. The stronger our economic ties to America, the stronger both nations become—and the clearer our message to those who seek to destabilize the region.

Iran's nuclear capabilities have been degraded. Its proxies have been weakened. More needs to be done to remove the missile and drone threats. And we are ready to join an international initiative to reopen the strait and keep it open.

We aren't asking the U.S. to carry the full burden. We are defending our people, protecting regional stability and global prosperity, and demonstrating that real alliances are built on cooperation and contribution, not dependency.

We want Iran as a normal neighbor. It can be reclusive and even unwelcoming, but it can't attack its neighbors, blockade international waters, or export extremism. Building a fence around the problem and wishing it goes away isn't the answer. It would simply defer the next crisis.

"These materials are being distributed by theGROUP on behalf of the Embassy of the United Arab Emirates. More information is on file with the Department of Justice, Washington, D.C."

Sudafi S. Henry, Managing Partner
theGROUP
1730 Pennsylvania Avenue NW, Suite 500
Washington, DC 20006
(202) 386-7282 ext. 114
www.thegroupdc.com