Friday, October 8	4:00:00 PM	Posted	SOCIAL	FEED	Typically, the Feast of San Gennaro is a time for NYC residents and tourists to come together and participate in an eleven-day-long festival filled with food, drinks, apparel, souvenirs and the colors red, white and green . This year, the event also offered a little more. When the Feast of San Gennaro in Little Italy ended last week, attendees were left with a sense of pride and joy due to the resilience of their community throughout the continued battle against COVID-19. NYC reopened just in time for the festival to come back in full force, with safety requirements in place. Read more about the 95th annual Feast of San Gennaro via @washingtonpost. https://www.washingtonpost.com/national/for-little-italy-festival-is-a-way-to-honor-those-lost-to-pandemic--and-to-celebrate-what-remains/2021/09/25/789272f6-1cd1-11ec-a99a-5feaz2b2da34b_story.html	link auto-populates
