	12:00:00 PM	Posted	GLOBAL	FEED	Located near Piazza Armerina, Sicily, the Villa Romana del Casale (mid-300 AD) is well-known evidence of ancient Roman rural economy and gives a glimpse of the sophisticated lifestyle of the ancient Romans. Almost every room holds large, intricate and well-preserved mosaics of exceptional artistic quality and detail, considered the most impressive collection of Roman mosaics in situ anywhere in the Roman world. Many of the mosaics illustrate the predominant social and economic structure or serve as triumphal praise of the villa owner, while others reference mythological stories or pay homage to Homeric poems. In 1997, the Villa was inscribed as a @UNESCOWorldHeritage site based on its immense cultural and historical value! The villa is comprised of 4 zones: the grand entrance, which holds a horseshoe-shaped courtyard; the villa's center, a room that holds the three apses or trichora, an oval peristyle, and a thermal baths complex. Check out our story to learn more about the history of this amazing @UNESCO site.
