	10:00:00 AM	Posted	SOCIAL	FEED	Happy #NationalPizzaDay! Dyk that in 2017, the Art of Neapolitan Pizzaiuolo joined the @UNESCO Representative List of the Intangible Cultural Heritage of Humanity? It all began in Naples, #Italy in the late 18th-century, and now, approximately 3,000 Pizzaiuoli practice the art there. They are a functioning part of what makes Naples ... Naples! Although the Neapolitan pizza is the original (and best) pizza, the culture of pizza making has spread around the world! In the US, you can find distinct forms of pizza in New York, Chicago, Detroit and even California—all inspired by Italy!	National Pizza Day National Pizza Day 1

Wednesday, February 9	12:00:00 PM	Posted	SCI/ECON	FEED	Astrophysicist Margherita Hack(1922-2013) was the first woman in #Italy to oversee an observatory. She served as the administrator of the Trieste Astronomical Observatory from 1964 to 1987 and her work led the group to global success. Hack was one of the first astronomers to believe that the future of astronomical observation was in using space satellites—and Italy is now diligently working alongside other top leaders in satellite space exploration. In 1995, the asteroid 8558 Hack was named in her honor. A perfect way to celebrate Italian #WomenInScience!	Margherita_Hack beIT Story 1

					Maria Montessori (1870-1952) was an Italian physician and educator whose thought leadership inspired a revolution in teaching all across the world. When Montessori graduated from medical school in 1896, she became one of Italy's first female physicians. In 1907, she opened the first Montessori school, the Casa dei Bambini , or Children's House in Rome. Her teachings focused on allowing children to learn naturally and challenged both past and modern-day standards of learning. Eventually, her unique theories on child development would begin to spread around the world. In the US, the American Montessori Society serves as an empowerment tool for Montessori practitioners across the nation. #WomenInScience	Maria_Montessori
