	2:00:00 PM	Posted	GLOBAL	FEED	Where in Italy are the @giroditalia racers right now? They'll reach the finish line on Sunday, but today they're on Stage 18 of the race, connecting the Valsugana and the Venetian Plain, a major flatland extending southwest to northeast in northern Italy. Riders will face difficulty on the Scale di Primolano and the Muro di Ca' del Poggio, two parts of the stage featuring windy, mountainous terrain, before reaching wide roads that will take them to the urban areas of Treviso. 	10:00:00 AM	Posted	GLOBAL	FEED	@StanleyTucci's show "Searching for Italy" continues in its second season on @CNN! Through his visit to Lake Trasimeno in Umbria, we're reminded of the diverse culinary traditions found within Italy's borders. Instead of more "traditional" Italian foods, the people of Lake Trasimeno eat specialty seafood, such as perch, pike and eel, that aren't typically found anywhere else in the country. Learn more about why visitors come to Lake Trasimeno specifically for the culinary delights https://www.cnn.com/travel/article/lake-trasimeno-umbria-food/index.html				Link autopopulates
	3:00:00 PM	Posted	GLOBAL	FEED	Earlier this week, Turin opened its doors for the @SaloneLibroTorino, where publishers, readers and other members of literary community come together to share in their love of one thing: books. As one of the largest book fairs in Europe, the Salone Libro di Torino is never light on attendees, but this year's edition shattered records, welcoming over 168,000 visitors! Some American speakers at the 2022 fair included Texan @JoeRLansdale, Nobel Prize winner Joseph Stiglitz, Pulitzer Prizer winner @Jennifereganwriter, novelist @ozekiland, and bestselling author @DonWinslowAuthor.
