Denmark expects decision on Nord Stream 2's updated permit within four weeks

COPENHAGEN, June 17 (Reuters) - Denmark's energy agency expects to make a decision on Nord Stream 2's updated plan to complete the final roughly 120-kilometre (75 mile) stretch of pipeline in Danish waters within four weeks, it said on Wednesday.

A 'yes' from the energy agency is crucial for the Gazprom-led project to go ahead and complete the $11 billion natural gas pipeline, which has been delayed several times.
