American-Serbian Business Council established in the US; Djuric, Escobar, and Hill attended the ceremony

With a solemn ceremony at the Embassy of the Republic of Serbia in Washington, the American-Serbian Business Council was established with the aim of further enhancing the economic dialogue and business ties between Serbia and the United States.

The Council was initiated by the Ambassador of the Republic of Serbia to the US, Marko Djuric, and former Deputy Assistant Secretary of the US Department of Commerce, Eric Stewart, the current Director of the American-Central European Business Association (ACEBA), who will serve as the President of the American-Serbian Business Council.

The ceremony was attended by the US State Department's Special Envoy for the Western Balkans, Gabriel Escobar, and the US Ambassador to the Republic of Serbia, Christopher Hill.
