Subject: Over 800 gather for Cambodia opposition meeting in Paris.

Good morning,

I wanted to let you know that the Cambodia National Rescue Party (CNRM) held a meeting with over 800 people in Paris last weekend to discuss the imminent need to restore democracy to Cambodia. The meeting came as the city of Paris unveiled a memorial statue to honor the victims of the Khmer Rouge genocide.

The people of Cambodia are at a critical time, as Prime Minister Hun Sen continues his egregious attacks on democracy and human rights. The national elections in July are a make or break moment for the stability and democracy of Cambodia—Hun Sen's regime is currently set to run unopposed to assert his regime for the next 5 years, ultimately allowing China to amplify its influence in the region.

You can watch CNRP leader Sam Rainsy's FB Live, and here are photos of the CNRM meeting.

Let me know if you're interested in connecting with Mu Sochua, Vice President of Cambodia National Rescue Party, on France's role in restoring democracy to Cambodia.

Thanks,
Nick
