* MEDIA ADVISORY ****

Ahead of Cambodia's Sham Election, Cambodian Diaspora to Host Rally Calling for an Election Boycott

Rally comes after Cambodian Prime Minister Hun Sen banned the only viable opposition party from participating in the July 29 national election, among other actions eroding democracy and human rights in the country

Ahead of Cambodia's upcoming sham election on July 29, Cambodia National Rescue Party (CNRP) Deputy President Mu Sochua and hundreds of Cambodians will hold rallies on Saturday, July 28, and Sunday, July 29, at 5.18 Democracy Square in Gwangju to urge Cambodians to boycott the election and to call on the international community, including South Korea, to reject the results of this undemocratic election. The rally is one of many happening across the globe, including in Washington DC, Tokyo, Paris, and Bangkok as part of the CNRP's day of protests:

Over the past year, Cambodia's Prime Minister Hun Sen, who has been in power for more than three decades, has advanced his egregious attacks on democracy and human rights in Cambodia with one goal in mind: to run unopposed in the July election and solidify his rule for years to come. In the leadup to the election, Hun Sen has dissolved and banned the CNRP, the only viable opposition party in Cambodia, exiled and imprisoned its leaders, and shut down the largest independent newspaper in the country. The CNRP is calling on its supporters, which includes nearly half of the voting population in Cambodia, to boycott this illegitimate election.

WHAT: Rally urging Cambodians to boycott July 29 election

WHEN: Saturday, July 28, from 9:00 pm – 12:00am, and Sunday, July 29, from 9:00am-12:00pm
