Abu Dhabi, United Arab Emirates, 03 March 2021 – Culture Summit Abu Dhabi has released the full programme for its virtual fourth edition, which will be held under the theme The Cultural Economy and the Economy of Culture. Organised by the Department of Culture and Tourism – Abu Dhabi (DCT Abu Dhabi), the Summit will take place from 8 – 10 March 2021. Attendance is free and open to the public, with registration now available on the Culture Summit website.

Culture Summit 2021 will convene global experts from fields such as design, heritage, media, public policy, and technology, for a series of keynote speeches, panel discussions, case studies, artist talks, performances, and film screenings.

The programme will explore the challenges and opportunities of developing adaptable, resilient, and collaborative creative ecosystems, and the socioeconomic benefits that vibrant cultural and creative industries around the world deliver, with a focus on knowledge exchange and policy development.

HE Mohamed Khalifa Al Mubarak, Chairman of DCT Abu Dhabi, said: “Culture Summit is ambitious in its goal to produce innovative, globally-impactful propositions by connecting cultural leaders with key voices from diverse yet related fields, and we will amplify that impact even further this year, through our first virtual and public edition. We create future-facing solutions that aim to change and improve the fields of culture, which are vital contributors to the recovery, growth, and development of any economy.”

“Abu Dhabi recognised the significant role that the culture sector and the creative industries play in economic development early on and have always considered them a key aspect in achieving the emirate’s objectives. In a time when the viability of these industries and their practitioners have been particularly affected by current global events, Culture Summit’s discussions will be vital ones, that must result in concrete outcomes. To this end, we are incredibly proud to see Abu Dhabi serve as a platform that brings together this calibre of participants, alongside our esteemed partners,” Al Mubarak added.

Discussions will also explore the post-COVID sector recovery and transformation, envisioning a new system that is more resilient and adaptable to any future disruptions, and the International Year of Creative Economy for Sustainable Development 2021, with the aim to showcase how the creative economy can advance the UN Sustainable Development Goals in education, economy, innovation and infrastructure, reduced inequality, and sustainable cities and communities.

The Summit’s programme was developed in collaboration with cultural partners, including UNESCO, The Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum and Foundation, The Economist Events, Google, United Nations Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD) and the Design Museum London.

Commenting on their participation in Culture Summit 2021, the Summit partners said:

“The International Year of Creative Economy for Sustainable Development aims to amplify culture’s contribution to the global economy, at a time when the world is looking to recover from COVID-19 and achieve the Sustainable Development Goals. An essential step in this process is measuring the pandemic’s impact on the cultural and creative industries. That is what UNESCO, working with Culture Summit Abu Dhabi, aims to do – and why the Summit will be one of the International Year’s flagship events.” - Audrey Azoulay, Director-General of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO).

“The annual Culture Summit assembles an esteemed group of thought leaders across disciplines. The Guggenheim is honoured to contribute; we look forward to shaping and participating in vital discourse at this year’s gathering, as we collectively reassess the role of culture, cultural platforms, and museums and how they can best serve and reflect a global society.” - Richard Armstrong, Director, Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum and Foundation.

“The Economist Events is delighted to be programming panel sessions at the first virtual Culture Summit Abu Dhabi. We are looking forward to a series of engaging discussions that will provide both clarity and insight.” - Fiametta Rocco, culture correspondent, The Economist and 1843 magazine.
“We're delighted to be participating in this year's Culture Summit Abu Dhabi and to share our experience working with cultural institutions from across the Middle East, including the UAE, to help preserve this region's rich cultural heritage and art through technology.” - Lino Cattaruzzi, Managing Director of Google Middle East and North Africa.

“UNCTAD’s panel at Culture Summit 2021 will aim to highlight the importance of creative economy as part of the solution for the global recovery in a new dimension. Impact investing can and will play a critical role in this journey.” - Marisa Henderson, Head of Creative Economy at the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD).

“The Design Museum is delighted to be a partner in this year’s Culture Summit Abu Dhabi. Having the opportunity to stage a series of creative conversations across design, architecture and art is both exciting and important and in spite of the restrictions placed on all participants and delegates this year, we are much looking forward to an exchange of ideas around the critical topic of the cultural economy.” - Tim Marlow, Chief Executive and Director, Design Museum London.

About the Summit theme ‘The Culture Economy and the Economy of Culture’:

Before the pandemic, the culture and creative industries (CCI) were one of the fastest growing sectors in the world economy, but the sector was one of the hardest struck by COVID-19.

CCI and the wider cultural economy continue to hold great promise in contributing to economic recovery and for the wider public good, in addressing inequity, promoting social inclusion, fostering cultural diversity, and advancing sustainable development. To realise these opportunities, the search is on for more adaptable, resilient, and collaborative approaches to building and sustaining cultural and creative ecosystems.

Culture Summit Abu Dhabi 2021 will explore the challenges and opportunities associated with building these ecosystems and the benefits they can deliver around the world. A strong theme will be the International Year of Creative Economy for Sustainable Development 2021, led by Summit partner the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD).

Definition of the Cultural Economy and Economy of Culture

- The Cultural Economy: The cultural economy is closely linked to the creative economy. It includes the culture and creative industries (CCI), such as advertising, architecture, arts and crafts, design, fashion, film, video, photography, music, performing arts, publishing, research and development, computer games, electronic publishing, and TV/radio. The cultural economy also extends beyond CCI to encompass all culture-led economic development, embracing technology, intellectual property, and tourism objectives.

- The Economy of Culture: The economy of culture is concerned with the economic organisation of CCI and the wider cultural economy, connecting the behaviour of cultural producers and consumers. The challenge of the economy of culture is defining strategies to advance greater resilience and sustainability in CCI and the wider cultural economy.

About Culture Summit Abu Dhabi:

Culture Summit is a forum that convenes leaders from the fields of the arts, design, heritage, media, museums, public policy, and technology, to identify ways in which culture can transform societies and communities worldwide.

The 2021 edition will mark the fourth and first virtual edition of the Summit that will be taking place from 8 – 10 March 2021, exploring the theme of The Cultural Economy and the Economy of Culture.

Inspired by key discussions from the 2019 edition of the Summit on the financial support and sustainability of the culture sector in the face of rapid societal and economic change, Culture Summit 2021 will examine opportunities to renew the cultural and creative industries in a post-COVID-19 environment and explore how the creative economy can be a positive force for societies and economies.

Culture Summit 2021 is organised by the Department of Culture and Tourism - Abu Dhabi, in collaboration with global partner organisations including UNESCO, The Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum and Foundation, the Economist Events, Google, United Nations Conference on Trade and Development, the Design Museum London, Abu Dhabi Cultural Foundation, Louvre Abu Dhabi and Berklee Abu Dhabi.

A series of panels, performances, and case studies throughout the event will engage participants with ideas about the role of culture in improving our world. The 2021 edition of Culture Summit is open for the public.
