ANNEX A: Work Plan

As requested, DCIA will provide the following services:

Primary Objectives

- Build support in the executive and legislative branches for U.S. Customs and Border Protection “preclearance” operations at Taoyuan International Airport.
- Assist you throughout all stages of the process of obtaining and implementing preclearance.

Process

We suggest thinking in terms of the decision-makers we need to impress, and the prospective partners with which we could cooperate to increase our chances of success. This is a preliminary list that we could develop further if we were to engage in a formal effort:

Decision-makers

Obvious targets of an effort to get preclearance at Taoyuan include DHS and CBP. However, while the U.S. executive branch would make and execute any final decision on preclearance at Taoyuan, Congress would be instrumental in building pressure on the administration. This would be true whether or not the Trump administration gets a second term or is succeeded by a Biden administration. In fact, building congressional pressure and a coalition of supporting organizations outside of government is more important than who sits at the top of the executive branch or DHS. The key is to create political momentum that will be effective and durable regardless of the outcome of fall elections.

The following congressional committees are the most crucial to preclearance funding and policy:

- House and Senate Homeland Security Committees
- House and Senate Appropriations Committees

For additional reasons such as partial jurisdiction and general policy interest, we would also plan to interact with:

- House and Senate Foreign Affairs Committees
- Senate Commerce Committee
- House Transportation Committee
- House Energy & Commerce Committee

With each committee, we would reach out to members and staffers who are the most likely to favor preclearance, and those with whom our bipartisan team of lobbyists have the strongest relationships. Our first priority would be to ensure funds are appropriated for Taoyuan preclearance. We would lead policy discussions with members of Congress and senior staff, and ensure they are positioned to get CBP to do what is necessary. Crucially, once preclearance is in place, we could work to sustain funding, which must be renewed every year.

Prospective Partners

The following are groups and organizations inside and outside of government that might be worth engaging to support Taoyuan preclearance. The list is preliminary, and we would make adjustments throughout an engagement.

- Individual members of Congress from states that would benefit from expanded preclearance at Taoyuan, especially those who are served by direct flights from the airport, those whose economies have much trade with Taiwan, and those with large populations of Taiwanese Americans.
- The Congressional Travel and Tourism Caucus
- Airport authorities that would receive precleared Taoyuan flights
- U.S. Department of Commerce, National Travel and Tourism Office
- U.S. Department of State – Economic and Business bureau; East Asia bureau
- U.S. carriers serving Taoyuan, selling code-share tickets, or who are part of alliances with Taiwanese carriers
- The Congressional Taiwan Caucus, other pro-Taiwan organizations in the U.S.
- Mayors of cities that would benefit
- Local chambers of commerce
- Brand USA
- The U.S. Travel Association
- Key state and local Convention & Visitors Bureaus
