

Delegation of German Industry and Commerce in Washington, DC

  Exciting Times Ahead for Energy Collaboration! DE  US

We were thrilled to welcome a high-level delegation from Hamburg to Washington, D.C. today.

Their mission? To explore innovative opportunities in the world of energy, hydrogen, and offshore wind! ⚡️🇪🇺

The delegation was led by Dr. Melanie Leonhard, Minister for Economy and Innovation of Free and Hanseatic City of Hamburg, her team, and consisted of more than 20 companies from the Hamburg region.

   We covered:

1. U.S. energy policy, U.S.-Germany energy partnership, the Inflation Reduction Act
2. Discussions with the Fuel Cell and Hydrogen Energy Association (FCHEA) Vice President for External Affairs, Connor Dolan, including the recently announced U.S. hydrogen hub locations
3. World Bank financed hydrogen projects
4. an exchange with the Department of Commerce Office of Energy and Environmental Industries

Together, we aim to raise the bar for sustainable energy solutions on both sides of the Atlantic
