Hun Sen has been terrible for Cambodia. His son could be worse

Cambodians continue to fight for democracy, as a new generation of the elite – inexperienced and entitled – takes over.

Majority of these illegitimate MPs hold illegal businesses

 Kamnotra - កំណត់ត្រា @kamnotra · Aug 14

One incoming Kampot lawmaker's family features in a Global Witness report on "illegal logging and the stripping of public assets by Cambodia's elite"; another is married to Hun Sen's sister.

Kampot

1. Pen Simon, CPP

Pen Simon, 68, represented Kampot in the National Assembly in the sixth mandate. Simon was a former director of the customs and excise department and was accused of corruption in his department. Global Witness has said that Simon's wife has been conducting business deals with Attwood Import Export, a distributor of luxury goods. Simon owns a massive mansion behind the Senate building in Phnom Penh, whose 6,500 square meters of land was reportedly worth $18 million in 2015.

2. Un Sokunthea, CPP

Un Sokunthea, 68, is an incumbent member of parliament representing Kampot and was secretary for the National Assembly's commission on interior, national defense and civil service. She is married to former provincial governor Khoy Khun Hour.

3. Som Chen, CPP

Som Chen, 74, was a member of parliament representing Kampot in the sixth mandate. He is the father of Som Piseth, governor of Kep province. Chen is also chair of the Cambodia-DPRK Friendship Parliamentary Group.

4. Nim Chantara, CPP

Nim Chantara, 68, was a member of parliament who represented Kampot in the sixth mandate and a member of the National Assembly's commission on foreign affairs, international cooperation, information and media. Chantara is married to Hun Sen's sister Hun Sinath and previously served as an ambassador to Myanmar. He is a director for four companies including car company Billion Auto and private security firm Overseas Security Guardians Holdings.

5. Cham Nimul, CPP

Cham Nimul, 43, is a secretary of state for the Commerce Ministry and also a member of the Union of Youth Federations of Cambodia's standing committee. She is the daughter of Industry Minister Cham Prasidh.

6. Math Seth, CPP

Math Seth, 42, was a member of parliament representing Kampot in the sixth mandate. Seth appears to have two companies in the Commerce Ministry registry.
