Statement on the 32nd Anniversary of the Paris Peace Accords

The Paris Peace Agreements on Cambodia – a historic document- signed on 23 October, 1991 by major regional and global powers put an end to decades of civil war, lay down a foundation for a national reconciliation, peace, the protection of human rights and liberties, a system of liberal democracy and free and fair elections and Cambodia's integrity and sovereignty.

The core principles of the Paris Peace Accords are also enshrined in the country's 1993 constitution but have been systematically disregarded and violated by the Hun Sen regime.

The 1993 election organized by the United Nations saw Hun Sen's Cambodian People's Party defeated by the royalist Funcinpec party. This verdict was overturned by force in a bloody coup orchestrated by Hun Sen in 1997. Cambodia has never since had a free and fair election.

The peaceful opposition Cambodia National Rescue Party (CNRP) was dissolved by the politically controlled supreme court on 16 November, 2017. Moreover, the 23 July 2023 election was rigged by the Hun Sen regime with the elimination of a viable opposition, the Candle Light Party. Millions of voters were left without a chance to vote for the party of their choice.

The Paris Peace Agreements remain the best and only available vehicle for ending Cambodia's extended political crisis. The signatory countries can play an important role in the protection of human rights, the restoration of the system of liberal democracy, Cambodia's integrity and sovereignty as enshrined in the Paris Peace Accords.

The international community must fulfil their obligations and their duty in ensuring the effective and full implementation of the Paris Peace Accords.
