Hi [REDACTED] – Thanks for sharing this info – it really sounds like this is going to be a great series. Wondering if you are still looking for some guests that are ingrained in the investing world in some unique ways? I work with the Future Investment Institute \(FII\), which you may be familiar with as it has drawn some big name investors over its 8 years.

Richard Attias, Chairman of the Future Investment Institute (FII) has led the charge in convening these global leaders for over 8 years at FII and can speak to what it means to be at the center of conversations with global CEOs, business executives and policymakers to discuss the most pressing advancements around technology, education, healthcare and sustainability. Unlike many of his peers, Richard is someone who has occupied positions at the top of the corporate world and now as a global leader in the third sector, which he feels has given him a set of unique perspectives, including his steadfast belief in the need for the public sector to work in partnership with the private sector, which is often better placed to drive change and innovation.

Know your podcast is really focusing on how people with interesting stories have approached investments, financial institutions and policy and Richard has a hand in all three, and more. Would love to connect you with him to talk through some of his lessons learned throughout his career and how some of the world's most pressing investment conversations are taking place on the FII stage. He would be great to discuss some recent developments from a global investment lens as well, especially as FII's European Summit just wrapped in May.

Let me know what your upcoming schedule looks like for guests – think Richard would be really valuable for the series.

Thanks,
