Subject: Intro to Chairman of FII?

Hi [REDACTED],

I have been reading some of your recent coverage and wanted to reach out to offer a conversation with Richard Attias, Chairman of the global think tank Future Investment Initiative \(FII\) Institute who is ingrained in the world of sustainable investment across the globe, even as geopolitical divides threaten progress.

As global fragmentation continues to escalate around the world, Richard is keenly aware of how capital, governance, and ethics intersect in this era of geopolitical flux. With a unique perspective gained through convening heads of state, CEOs, and investors to work towards a more sustainable future, Richard can speak to:

- The critical role and success factors of Public-Private Partnerships (PPPs) in addressing urban challenges such as resource constraints, social inequality, and climate change.
- How global connectivity is hampered by geopolitical tensions and resource disparities.
- The investment strategies from world powers and private entities in advanced technology to drive sustainable growth in today's complex global landscape.

In case you are not familiar with FII Institute's work, the organization is a global nonprofit with a core mission of "Impact on Humanity" across four focus areas: AI & Robotics, Education, Healthcare, and Sustainability. The 9th edition of its flagship conference will gather 8,000 participants this October in Riyadh to discuss solutions for the world's most pressing challenges.

Would you be interested in connecting with Richard for a conversation either about general trends or for any stories you might have in the works? Happy to coordinate.

Best,
