
From: [REDACTED]
Sent: Friday, November 14, 2025 3:24 PM
To: [REDACTED]
Subject: Exclusive Op-Ed: Richard Attias, FII - How the U.S.–Saudi Relationship Is Being Redefined

[REDACTED] –

I hope this note finds you well. I'm getting in touch to offer [REDACTED] an opinion piece from Mr. Richard Attias, Chairman of the Executive Committee and Acting CEO of the FII Institute ahead of Saudi Crown Prince Mohammed bin Salman's meeting with President Trump next week.

Below please find an overview of the piece and if interested, this article would be exclusive to [REDACTED].

Is this something you might be interested in reviewing in full for publishing? Please let me know.

Many thanks in advance,
[REDACTED]

+++

Title: How the U.S.–Saudi Relationship Is Being Redefined
Written by: Richard Attias, Chairman of the Executive Committee and Acting CEO of the FII Institute.

Draft abstract: As HRH Prince Mohammed bin Salman, Saudi Arabia's Crown Prince and Prime Minister, prepares for his November 18 visit to President Trump at the White House, the upcoming U.S.-Saudi Investment Summit in Washington represents more than a bilateral engagement; it is part of a broader reordering of the global economy. The world is in the midst of a profound transformation, where technology, energy and human capital are reshaping prosperity and power. At the center of this shift stands Saudi Arabia, not only as an energy producer but as a catalyst for global investment, innovation and inclusive growth.

For the United States, the summit is an opportunity to engage with one of the fastest-evolving economies in the world and to explore new corridors of collaboration across critical sectors.

Drawing on his experience advising global leaders and gathering Heads of State, business executives and civic leaders annually in Riyadh and in other global power centers like Miami in the U.S., Richard

Attias, Acting CEO of the FII Institute, will explore:

- How “investment diplomacy” can serve as a new engine of prosperity, channeling capital and technology toward shared progress.
- Why Saudi Arabia’s transformation represents a blueprint for sustainable growth in a multipolar world.
- How partnership between the United States and Saudi Arabia can help drive global stability, opportunity, and innovation in the decade ahead

An Inc. 5000 Fastest-Growing Company

This material is distributed by Prosek Partners on behalf of FII Institute. Additional information is available at the Department of Justice, Washington, DC.

From: [REDACTED]
Sent: Friday, November 14, 2025 5:41 PM
To: [REDACTED] >
Subject: Exclusive Op-Ed: Richard Attias, FII - How the U.S.–Saudi Relationship Is Being Redefined

[REDACTED] –

I hope this note finds you well. I'm getting in touch to offer [REDACTED] an opinion piece from Mr. Richard Attias, Chairman of the Executive Committee and Acting CEO of the FII Institute ahead of Saudi Crown Prince Mohammed bin Salman's meeting with President Trump next week.

Below please find an overview of the piece and if interested, this article would be exclusive to [REDACTED].

Is this something you might be interested in reviewing in full for publishing? I realize you rarely accept outside commentary but did want to offer you this piece. Please let me know.

Warmly,

[REDACTED]

+++

Title: How the U.S.–Saudi Relationship Is Being Redefined

Written by: Richard Attias, Chairman of the Executive Committee and Acting CEO of the FII Institute.

Draft abstract: As HRH Prince Mohammed bin Salman, Saudi Arabia's Crown Prince and Prime Minister, prepares for his November 18 visit to President Trump at the White House, the upcoming U.S.-Saudi Investment Summit in Washington represents more than a bilateral engagement; it is part of a broader reordering of the global economy. The world is in the midst of a profound transformation, where technology, energy and human capital are reshaping prosperity and power. At the center of this shift stands Saudi Arabia, not only as an energy producer but as a catalyst for global investment, innovation and inclusive growth.

For the United States, the summit is an opportunity to engage with one of the fastest-evolving economies in the world and to explore new corridors of collaboration across critical sectors.

Drawing on his experience advising global leaders and gathering Heads of State, business executives and civic leaders annually in Riyadh and in other global power centers like Miami in the U.S., Richard Attias, Acting CEO of the FII Institute, will explore:

- How “investment diplomacy” can serve as a new engine of prosperity, channeling capital and technology toward shared progress.
- Why Saudi Arabia’s transformation represents a blueprint for sustainable growth in a multipolar world.
- How partnership between the United States and Saudi Arabia can help drive global stability, opportunity, and innovation in the decade ahead

An Inc. 5000 Fastest-Growing Company

This material is distributed by Prosek Partners on behalf of FII Institute. Additional information is available at the Department of Justice, Washington, DC.