The Korea Inter-Parliamentary Exchange Center (KIPEC) invites you to join our upcoming seminar:

“Why Congress Matters: How Capitol Hill Shapes U.S. Policy and the U.S.-ROK Alliance”

 Date & Time: Tuesday, September 8, 2026 | 11:00 AM–12:00 PM EDT

 Location: KIPEC Office
1660 L Street NW, Suite 1050, Washington, DC 20036

 Featured Speaker

Casey BURGAT
Director of the Legislative Affairs Program and Associate Professor, George Washington University Graduate School of Political Management

Congress plays a central role in shaping U.S. foreign, national security, economic, and trade policy—but how does that influence actually take shape on Capitol Hill?

Join us for a practical look at how congressional committees, leadership, and professional staff drive legislative outcomes. We'll examine how Congress exercises its budgetary, appropriations, and oversight authorities, and why these dynamics matter for U.S. alliances, including the U.S.-ROK relationship.
