Hi Emma,

Annie Correa! has kindly referred me to you.

I'm reaching out on behalf of Argentina's former president Cristina Fernandez de Kirchner as she prepares to take her corruption conviction to the UN Human Rights Committee.

On Monday, Cristina's team formally submitted the legal challenge to the UN, seeking a temporary removal of her lifetime ban on holding public office.

The case is set to be considered during the Committee's session on 19 October.

If this is of interest, we'd be happy to arrange an on background or on record interview with Rafael Valim, who can provide further details about Christina's case ahead of this key session.

Rafael also represented Brazilian President Lula. He is a leading international expert on lawfare and serves as a legal adviser on international and regional human rights.

Best,
Ani.
